THE Reverend Dr. Fosdick, of New York, in whose church nobody ever goes to sleep, says science causes religion to deal "with new ideas in the theoretical realm and with new powers in the practical realm."

The old Bible story, Dr. Fosdick says, "telling stories of men living on a flat, stationary earth, with skies and light above and a place for the dead underneath," no longer answers the purpose.

NO state, says Dr. Fosdick, will be able to pass laws strong enough to hold back science. He is right about that. The theory that the round earth travels around the sun is more generally accepted, although the man that gave the truth to the world was compelled to deny the truth on his knees and spent years of his old age in prison for contradicting the old Bible story.

TWO kinds of good news for automobile owners:

First, you are told that if and when the natural supply of gasoline gives out, synthetic gasoline will be made to take its place.

Second, scientists have discovered a system of bud grafting on rubber trees which should increase the yield of a tree 400 per cent.

IT is predicted that the cost of rubber delivered in this country will drop from twenty-five cents to less than ten cents a pound.

Scientists say they can make synthetic rubber as well as synthetic gasoline, but that probably will be postponed, like artificial gasoline, until natural supplies diminish.

A FRENCH scientist proves by careful observation that cancer is NOT contagious. To do away with the false, persistent suspicion is a great blessing. Married couples, living together, one the victim of cancer, do not contract the disease from each other, and cannot contract it. That is proved by reliable statistics.

THE German ambassador to Washington says the Grand Canyon was the model for America's new style of skyscraper, with its setbacks. A more interesting suggestion is that the Grand Canyon will supply a good model for cellars to be dug under skyscrapers in the future, when flying machines land on roofs and are lowered, for parking, in cellars a mile deep.

PARIS dressers, realizing that long hair is "coming in," are buying stocks of "transformations," long hair arrangement for women to wear while waiting for bobbed hair to grow.

Short hair is common sense, of course, and, in time, long hair will be as obsolete as a veil over the face.

Long after men had cut their hair primitive women let their hair grow long, because, matted with grease, it was a good thing and the long hair comes back in cold weather.

Long hair seems "feminine" to men. Women do what men want, and the long hair comes back. It will go away again.

UNCLE SAM owes $18,000,000,000 in bonds outstanding. The bonded indebtedness of all the states totals $1,846,000,000. Borrowing by the states, stimulated perhaps by those willing to pay a high price for bonds free of national income tax, has been criticized. But state debts are small, considering the wealth of the nation.

Florida, Nebraska and Wisconsin have no state debt. South Dakota has the highest per capita, $85.15. New York state owes the most and can afford to. Central Park in New York City is worth more than the whole state debt.

HALF the money borrowed by the states has been spent on good roads, a fact that justifies the borrowing. If it could be said that the other half had been spent on public schools the situation would be perfect, and it wouldn't matter if the states owed a billion apiece.

THE Carnegie Foundation has spent years and money most usefully to promote care of the teeth and proper education of dentists. In many cases the poor pay more than the rich for inferior dental work. The number of really good dentists is totally inadequate. Ninety per cent of children at least have their teeth neglected. Neglected teeth prevent perfect digestion and a good blood supply. Infected teeth kill millions through heart disease and other troubles.

OWEN YOUNG, an American financial genius, told a meeting in Sweden that business men are fit to lead the world, since "the major problems are economic." He might add that they DO lead the world, in this country, and in a majority of countries. The world's government is BUSINESS government. What was once a humble commissariat now rules armies, generals and kings.

MARITAL VENTURE UPSET

BY MOTHER

Miss Sarah Thompson, 18, 1543 Lincoln avenue, disappeared and her mother, Mrs. Olive Thompson, notified the Missing Persons Bureau. That bureau notified the Marriage License Bureau at Wellsburg, W. Va. The Missing Persons Bureau attaches had guessed correctly. Sarah was there, with, police reported, William Maloney, of Hermitage street. They are married and coming home for the parental blessing.

Hope for Fliers Is Given Up

HONOLULU, Aug. 23.—Hope of eventual finding of Miss Mildred Doran and the six other missing aviators, who were forced down on their mainland-to-Honolulu Dole air race, had been practically abandoned today.

It was just one week ago today that the pretty 22-year-old Michigan school teacher took off from Oakland airport. Since then one of the most thorough searches in the history of the Navy has failed to divulge even the slightest indication of their whereabouts. Not even a splotch of oil on the waters of the Pacific, indicating where they might possibly have gone down, has been found.

Green flares seen above Naunakea, on Hawaii Island, offered a bit of hope last night, but little credence was given the report. It was pointed out that had any of the aviators landed there six days would have been sufficient time for them to have

Sheldon, Weldon and Melvin Here; Ma's Doing Nicely

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Triplet sons born to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde S. Cox, who live on a farm west of here have been named Sheldon, Weldon and Melvin. They weighed 4, 4½ and 5½ pounds at birth. Mrs. Cox is reported to be "doing nicely."

Wealth for Descendants But They Must Wait Till Dollar Grows

By Universal Service.

HOLLAND, Mich., Aug. 23.—William Stellema, Holland merchant, today deposited $1 in a local bank to remain there until the year 2427, drawing compound interest, when the proceeds are to be distributed among his descendants and for charitable purposes.

McCaskey Heirs Lose Fight

Judge H. Walton Mitchell in Orphans Court today refused to set aside the will of John G. McCaskey, millionaire oil operator and sauerkraut merchant, who left an estate of more than $3,000,000 to his three sons and two daughters.

Some of the children had attempted to gain possession of the estate on the grounds that its provisions violated the law pertaining to perpetuities. The three sons, John Ashford, William and Irwin McCaskey were to receive one-fourth of their shares when they were 30 years old, a second fourth at 35 and a third at 40, the remainder to be held in trust for their children. Until they were 30 the sons were to receive the income from their shares. The daughters, Mary L. McCaskey and Marjorie J. McCaskey, were to get the income from their shares until their death, when it was to be given to their children.

Judge Mitchell pointed out that the father had in mind the welfare of his children.

Gary Leaves Fund to Pitt

Gary Advice to Heirs Found in Will

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The will of Judge Elbert H. Gary, filed here today, concludes with pointed advice to the heirs. It "earnestly requests my wife and my children and their descendants:"

Not to sign notes or bonds for anyone.

That "they refrain from anticipating their income in any respect."

That they loan money only on good security and never make personal loans.

That they avoid all doubtful investments regardless of how glib the salesman may be.

That they always reject the opinions of others if "involved in any doubt."

Judge Gary's last bit of busines advice was:

"They will be approached frequently with suggestions for investments that are not entitled to be relied upon from a business standpoint."

MINEOLA, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The will of the late Elbert H. Gary, former chairman of the U. S. Steel Corporation was filed for probate here today.

It contained no item of the value of the estate beyond the usual declaration that it amounted to more than $10,000. There were specific bequests amounting to more than $2,000,000.

The will creates two trust funds of $500,000 each for Mrs. Gertrude Gary Sutcliffe and Mrs. Bertha Gary Campbell, Gary's two daughters by his first marriage. They will receive the income from these funds for life. On the death of Mrs. Sutcliffe the in-

Cloonan On Stand In Probe

Tangible evidence of inconsistent and misleading bookkeeping methods was expected to be exposed today, as the audit of the county commissioners' books was resumed, if County Controller C. C. McGovern' promised "ace in the hole" proved its value when the cards were turned.

Interest in the audit was noticeably heightened last week, when the first session adjourned, by the controller's statement that he had "ace" to produce when next he foregathered with the commissioners and their account books.

Knows His Magazines After Police Scent Bomb in Bag

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—A mysterious black satchel left beside a tree near the home of Associate Justice Pierce Butler of the United States Supreme Court caused a bomb scare yesterday.

Policeman John Ashton, Negro, detailed to guard the Butler home, found it and became pop eyed when he read this notice pasted on the side:

"This bag is not lost. Hands off. Please do not touch."

A crowd gathered at a respectful distance, waiting nervously to see if the thing would go off. The police bomb squad was notified to come a-running.

Then a dapper young man came from a nearby house, opened the satchel, took out a magazine, and continued his work of canvassing the neighborhood for customers.

TROOPER'S SLAYER SOUGHT

Densely wooded land about Cheswick is being combed today in an intensified search for the slayer of State Trooper John J. Downey, who was shot to death yesterday after he and other officers had dispersed a crowd gathered to protest against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti.

All night long state troopers, with deputy sheriffs and other police, maintained a vigil about the section in which the killer is believed to be hiding. In the dark it was futile to attempt to explore the district, police said, but a guard was kept so that the hunted man could not leave the vicinity.

LAUNCH HUNT WITH DAWN.

With daylight, the search was begun anew. More than 50 officers were in the posse assembled under the command of Capt. Jack Mauk, of the Butler barracks, and Lieut. Thomas P. Martin and Sergt A. A. Downing, of Greensburg. They began a systematic hunt to cover every inch of the wooded territory and swampland surrounding the town.

Armed citizens, who yesterday were bitter against the state troopers for their action in breaking up the assemblage at Cheswick, joined with

Death Chair Triumphs

"I Die Innocent," Says Vanzetti — "Long Live Anarchy"—Sacco.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 23.—Sacco and Vanzetti died game. Each made a speech in the death chamber just before they were electrocuted this morning.

"Long live anarchy," shouted Sacco in Italian after he entered the chamber.

Then, without any instructions, he sat down in the chair and said in broken English:

"Farewell to my wife and children, and all my friends."

As the straps were being applied he added:

"Good evening, gentlemen."

He was speaking to the official witnesses.

Then: "Farewell, mother."

That was his last.

Vanzetti made a longer talk in which he protested his innocence. He was cool and collected. As he entered the death chamber he shook hands with his guards. Then he sat down in the chair without any instructions and said:

"I wish to tell you I am innocent and never committed a crime, but sometimes a sin. I thank you for everything you have done for me. I am innocent of all crime—not only of this one, but of all crimes. I am an innocent man."

Here he paused. The straps were being applied. Then he added: "I wish to forgive some people for what they are now doing to me." Thus Vanzetti's last words were those of Monastery Bombed in Cleveland; Spirited Protest in Geneva. 1 Killed, 25 Hurt.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 23.—The Franciscan monastery of St. Joseph's Church was bombed here early today, shortly after the execution in Boston of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

No one was injured, but a motorcycle officer who passed the church just a minute or two before the explosion was blown from his machine by the force of the blast.

The monastery was damaged to the extent of $10,000 and windows in houses for blocks around were shattered. Residents were thrown from their beds.

ANGRY MOB GATHERS.

GENEVA, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—About 2,000 manifestants assembled before the American consulate early this evening in protest against the Sacco-Vanzetti executions. Firemen were called out and drenched the mob with water.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—One person was killed and more than 25 wounded in Geneva last night in disorders in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch received here.

Several of the wounded persons are in a critical condition.

Dormont Pitcher Burned

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug 23.—When a spark from a cigaret which he was smoking ignited gasoline in his automobile early today, Lawrence Bope, 28, of Dormont, Pa., pitcher for the Clarksburg team of the Middle-Atlantic Baseball League, received burns on the head and shoulders.

Bope was in Johnstown with the Clarksburg team for a series of games with the local club. As he smoked a cigaret while the gas tank of his machine was being filled, a spark ignited the fluid.

The youthful pitcher is reported to be resting well in the Mercy Hospital here. He will be released in a few days, hospital attaches said.

Sacco-Vanzetti Bodies To Be Paraded Through East

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—The bodies of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti are to be taken in specially-constructed caskets through the cities of the East. This was announced by the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee today.

First they are to lie in state at the committee headquarters in Hanover street in the north end of this city. When this will be, the committee was unable to say at noon, as it had not been informed at the time when the bodies would be turned over to it by Medical Examiner Magrath. The visits to various cities might extend as far as Chicago, it was added.

forgiveness to those he had considered his enemies.

Celestine Madeiros, who was also executed here this morning for another murder, preceded Sacco and Vanzetti to the chair. He seemed to be in a stupor and said nothing.

NO CHAPLAIN ATTENDS.

There was no chaplain present. None of the men wanted spiritual consolation. They wanted to die as they had lived—"outside the pale," to use their own words.

All three were calm, but Sacco seemed a little excited. He jerked out his words. All wore blue shirts and gray trousers and loose black slippers. They had no coats.

Sacco got a stronger shock than the other two. He was given from 1,400 to 2,000 volts. Vanzetti was given from 1,400 to 1,950 volts and Madeiros got from 1,400 to 1,200 volts.

All three were executed within the space of 25 minutes. Madeiros entered the death chamber at 12:02:47 and was dead at 12:09:35. Sacco, who was the second, entered the death chamber at 12:11:12 and was dead at 12:19:02. Vanzetti entered the death chamber at 12:20:38 and was dead at 12:26:55.

HOW THEY DIED.

The procedure in the death chamber was about the same in each execution. The condemned man was taken from his cell by two guards and marched to the death chamber a few feet away. The straps were quickly adjusted. His pants were rolled up so the electrode touched the bare skin.

At the same time the other guards were adjusting the cap over his head, after placing a rubber band across his face to keep the features from burning. His head was forced back to meet the electrode at the top of the chair back.

Warden Hendry gave the signal. Robert C. Elliott, the executioner, caught the signal instantly. He pushed the switch in with a firm hand. The lights went dim. The victim in the chair gave a lunge that made the strong leather straps creak. After 10 seconds the switch was gradually drawn out, but not all the way. The lights grew bright again.

In another 10 seconds the switch was forced in again. More dim lights. There was a second lunge by the victim, but weaker than the first. Again the switch was pulled out as the lights brightened. A brief wait and Elliott gave a third shove. There was no lunge this time, just a slump.

But one could imagine he smelt the odor of singeing human flesh. Maybe it was just imagination.

Then Elliott opened the switch. The lights burned brightly again. The man was dead. He was so pronounced by Dr. Joseph McLaughlin, prison physician. The straps were loosened and the corpse lifted to a marble slab a few feet away from the chair.

Then the guards went out for the next prisoner and the performance was repeated until Massachusetts had enacted her penalties.

ALL DISPLAY BRAVADO.

The game conduct of the condemned men in the death chamber was a surprise to the witnesses. Earlier in the night the men wilted, but evidently regained their bravado at the end.

The bodies were kept in the death house until just before dawn and then turned over to relatives. A police squad armed with shotguns escorted them through the streets to the morgue and will perform like duty on the way to the cemetery. This was to foil any demonstrations by sympathizers who want to use the corpses as a symbol.

The executions came after every possible legal effort to save the men had failed. Their last hope went out when Gov. Fuller at 11 o'clock last night announced that he would not reprieve the men.

Two members of the defense committee called at the Northern Mortuary today and formally claimed the bodies of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Gardner Jackson and Aldino Felicana, the claimants, were understood to be acting in behalf of Mrs. Rose Sacco and Miss Luigia Vanzetti.

Untold Wealth Cost Of Sacco Appeals And Protests

By Universal Service.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—The Sacco-Vanzetti case has cost human life and untold wealth throughout the world. Bombings and other outrages both in this country and abroad have been blamed on the Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers.

Strikes, as far away as South America, have cost millions. It is impossible to estimate how much this case has cost. The defense alone has cost $330,000. The state has probably spent more if one includes the cost of special police and guards.

Every possible legal move has been made, including appeals to four justices of the United States Supreme Court. It has dragged on for seven years.

the officers today in scouring the territory for Downey's slayer.

The object of the hunt is described as a foreigner, about 40, weight approximately 125 pounds, 5 feet 2 inches tall, wearing dark trousers and a brown hat.

HOLD 22 WITHOUT BAIL.

Twenty-two suspects arrested by state police and county detectives following the shooting of Downey are being held in the Allegheny county jail without bail. First Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park spent two hours in jail today interrogating the prisoners, and on his return to his office he announced that a further examination would be made.

"Every man will be held and no bail will be accepted until the investigation of the shooting is completed," said Park. "Charges of unlawful assemblage and inciting riot will be made against the ring-leaders who are now under arrest."

The shooting yesterday occurred after the meeting had been broken up by the troopers. Downey had ordered four men, loitering near the scene, to move on. When one refused, the officer struck him with his mace. The man drew a revolver and fired four or five times, three bullets hitting Downey.

L. W. Muder, cashier, First National Bank of Russellton, was emphatic in declaring no threats had been received by bank officials on account of the bank's refusal to close during the Sacco-Vanzetti meeting yesterday. He said that while nearly all stores in Russellton closed, the bank had remained open and had not been asked to close. Others say threats were made on the street that the bank would be bombed if it failed to close.

Four state policemen accompanied by a deputy sheriff, using an automobile, patrolled roads leading to and from Russellton this morning searching for the slayer of Private Downey.

The body of Trooper Downey, now at the home of his financee, Miss Esther E. Beatty, 1405 Creedmore avenue, Brookline, will be shipped to his home in Bridgeport tonight. His mother and three brothers are living there.

missioners' Bureau of Accounts, and Nicholas Stabile, head of the Public Works bookkeeping department were subpoenaed to testify this afternoon. Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, who testified last week, and James Houlahen were present.

CLOONAN TAKES STAND.

McGovern's examination today was based on the reports of his auditors, who have just concluded an audit of the bond fund ledgers of both Cloonan's and Stabile's departments.

Cloonan, first to be sworn, told McGovern his present position was fixed by resolution. McGovern questioned his experience and fitness for his job. Cloonan replied his past employment was consistent with his present work. He said that for years he had made up the annual report of the treasurer's office. He said his salary was $4,500 a year. His salary in 1924, he answered in reply to a question of McGovern's, was $2,600. He could not recall how much extra he had made during that year. His extras in 1925, he said, were in the neighborhood of $1,500.

In 1926, Cloonan said he was receiving his present salary and collected approximately $1,500 extra for overtime work.

Oh! How Girls Fall for Leatherneck Fliers!

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—A group of "quite good looking" girls in Bay City, Mich., have ambitions of getting acquainted with "fairly educated, single" Marine aviators.

They let their wants be known in a letter received recently by the commanding officer of Brown Field, Quantico, Va. With a plea for forgiveness for their liberty, the letter said:

"A number of Bay City young business women working in offices, stores, etc., highly respectable, single and loving good, clean fun, have been in the habit of meeting semi-weekly to play 500, read or just talk.

"We would like you if you don't think it too foolish a notion, to send us the name and addresses of a few congenial fellow officers who would care to correspond with us. We average from 18 to 28 years of age, all are well educated and quite good looking."

The commander posted the letter under the title, "Attention, Marine Bachelor Officers," but he withheld the name of the sender.

LAPSE OF MEMORY BRINGS JAIL TERM

Sam Brown, Negro, 20, of Vicksburg, Miss., is undergoing a 30-day memory cure in jail as the result of an error which he made in McKees Rocks yesterday. Sam thought he was in a melon patch, he told police, and picked up one of the juiciest of the lot. He was arrested as he passed the McKees Rocks Police Station.

SEARCHERS NAB MAN IN OFFICE

Detectives and police took part in a search which lasted an hour and a half in the Buka building, Third avenue and Market street, following the receipt of a report that a strange man had been seen entering the building.

The search ended at 4 o'clock this morning when they found J. A. Morgan, 46, Negro, 13¼ Townsend street, in the office of the Hamilton Lithographing Company. Morgan said he was employed in the building. He was arrested charged with being a suspicious person.

GIVE UP HOPE FOR FLIERS

made their way across the mountains.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Practically all hope for finding any of the seven missing Pacific flyers alive was given up by Navy officials today.

Nevertheless, their search of the Pacific will continue until Thursday. Navy and commercial ships from then on will be asked to watch for wreckage that may give a clue to the fate of the Dallas Spirit, the Miss Doran and the Golden Eagle.

Because the Dallas Spirit was the only one of the three missing planes whose whereabouts was known just before it is presumed to have crashed, the Navy has been able to complete an intensive but unsuccessful search of the spot, about 500 miles out of San Francisco.

This failure made more unlikely the chance ever to find any of the three planes, officials believed. If the three-ton Dallas plane crashed from a tail-spin starting a mile in the air, as believed by some, the craft would sink immediately.

On the death of the children the incomes go to their children or, if they have no children, to their heirs.

FUNDS FOR COLLEGES.

The will sets forth that there are no debts or claims against the estate "except such as are public and well-known including principally an indebtedness of $100,000 to the Chatham-Phoenix Bank and Trust Company duly secured.

A series of trust funds of $50,000 each is set up for scholarships at eight educational institutions. The trustees or governors of the schools are to name the students to benefit under this provision. The students are to be those "least able to pay their tuition" and "morally, mentally and physically competent." The money is to pay tuition.

Schools receiving these trust funds are:

McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill.

University of Pittsburgh.

Lafayette College, Easton, Pa.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.

Lincoln Memorial University, Harrogate, Tenn.

Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y.

Northwestern University, Chicago.

New York University, New York City.

For the family servants the will, after naming those who have completed 10 years of service with Gary, directs that at the end of the second 10 years of service each servant is to be paid $1,000 or in the event of Gary's death before the second 10 years expired, $100 for each year served over 10 years.

A trust fund of $200,000 is set up for Elbert Gary Sutcliffe, grandson of the steel magnate, and a similar fund for Julia Elizabeth Campbell, granddaughter. They are to receive the income and on their deaths their heirs are to receive it.

Judge Gary bequeathed the cemetery plot of the Gary family, including a large marble mausoleum, to his two daughters and directed that his body be placed in one of the crypts there—as was done. It specified that the body of his first wife should be placed in an adjoining crypt and on the death of his second wife her body also is to be placed there, "unless she directs otherwise." The will also said that the bodies of Gary's father and mother also should have a space in the mausoleum.

A trust fund of $50,000 was set up for the benefit of the Gary Memorial Church, Methodist, at Wheaton, Ill.

HOMESTEAD HOMES ARE ROBBED OF $160

Burglars last night ransacked the homes of two families, at 225 Fifth avenue, Homestead, and stole $160 from the trousers pockets of Joseph Captain, residing on the second floor. MONASTERY BOMBED IN PROTEST gathered in the Place Palais—the central park of Geneva—and paraded through the streets, gathering sympathizers as they marched. The agitators attacked several of the big hotels and American shops, and broke all the windows in the American Legation Building, the dispatch states.

Revolvers were used freely by the demonstrators and it is believed that a check-up will reveal a toll of casualties greater than now estimated.

The police station, where five agitators who had been arrested were lodged, was stormed and those incarcerated were freed by the sympathizers. City Councillor Albaret was stoned and removed to the hospital.

STORM BUCKINGHAM.

An attempt was made by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers to storm Buckingham Palace, the official residence of the royal family.

Elaborate police precautions dealt with the situation promptly and quickly dispersed the gathering.

VIOLENCE IN FRANCE.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations took a turn to violence in the provinces last night.

At St. Nazaire, a street battle raged. Fifty Communists ransacked police headquarters and engaged the police in a pistol battle. Several were injured and four Communists were arrested.

At Limoges, 8,000 workers paraded and speakers uttered threats and reprisals against the American Legion.

GERMAN PRESS BITTER.

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—The Sacco-Vanzetti case has given the press another opportunity to picture America as a greedy Uncle Shylock and "the land of the electric chair, lynchings, the Klu Klux Klan and second only to Russia in the miscarriage of justice." The entire Berlin press is devoting columns to the case.

The Communist newspaper "Welt am Abend," announces Mayor Walker's proposed visit with "Jazz Walker is coming to Berlin just twenty-four hours after the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti. It is an insult to Berlin's population that this man should be received here as a representative of the class that will murder Sacco and Vanzetti."

STRIKE IN STOCKHOLM.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 23.—Seven thousand workmen at Stockholm suspended work as a protest against the Sacco-Vanzetti execution. A five-minute suspension of work was observed throughout Norway as a part of trade union protests. Street cars in Oslo were halted.

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT WHEN CASTING EXPLODES

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 23.—One workman was killed and two others injured, not seriously, when a newly-repaired steam casting exploded at the DeFrehn Chair Factory here late yesterday. Wilson L. Sliter, 50, married and father of four children, died in Memorial Hospital an hour after the accident. The other injured were William J. Lehman, 43, and C. Earl Wissinger, general foreman.

GAS STOVE EXPLOSION FATAL TO WARREN MAN

WARREN, Pa., Aug. 23.—Gottlieb Spangler, 60, of Warren, died today in a local hospital following burns received late yesterday when a gas stove which he was lighting in his cottage at Shipmans Eddy, near here, exploded. The force of the explosion threw Spangler to the floor. With his clothing aflame, the victim ran out of the place and into the river where the flames were extinguished.

CITY CALM AT EXECUTION OF PAIR

Pittsburgh was peaceful today following the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti. No outbreaks were reported in the city and in the county two planned demonstrations were prevented by county detectives.

At Bridgeville Burgess S. P. McCaffrey had issued a permit for a parade last night, but withdrew it when deputy sheriffs, under instructions from Sheriff Robert H. Braun, appeared to stop the marchers. Nearby at Morgan, small mining town, deputies and state troopers patrolled the streets following reports that a protest meeting was to be held.

With tear gas maces, tear bombs, hand grenades and sawed-off shotguns, Pittsburgh police, on 24-hour duty, were prepared to cope with disturbers.

MORE THAN 250 SACCO ARRESTS

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—With the arrest of eight pickets in Charlestown this morning, the total number of demonstrators in behalf of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti taken into custody by Boston police in the past two weeks was brought to more than 250.

Just at the time that the men were being executed at the state prison a group of 50 pickets appeared in front of the County Square Police Station, half a mile from the prison. The line dispersed after eight who carried placards were arrested.

So fast were the prisoners brought in yesterday that officials were in doubt as to the exact number taken.

Some are more or less well known, including Edna St. Vincent Millay, poet; John Howard Lawson, dramatist; John Dos Passos, novelist; Clarina Michelson, author; Miss Ellen Hayes, former professor at Wellesley College; Powers Hapgood, of Pittsburgh, Harvard graduate who turned mine worker; and Alfred Baker Lewis, organizer of the Socialist party. The ages ranged from 11 years to more than 75. Hapgood was sent to the Psychopathic hospital for observation while the rest were released in bail for court appearances.

AGED 92, SHE'S VOTED MOST ACTIVE AT PICNIC

SOMERSET, Pa., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Catherine Miller, 92, of Salisbury, was not only the oldest person at the Deeter reunion recently, but she was voted one of the most active.

Crowds in Many Cities Get Death Bulletin

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Announcement of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti was received quietly by crowds that gathered in public squares and before newspaper bulletin boards in many cities after a day of unceasing police vigilance and general uneasiness.

At midnight in Union Square, New York, where police estimated 12,000 persons had gathered, placards reading "Sacco Murdered," "Vanzetti Murdered" were posted by a Socialist newspaper when word of the execution was received, but the crowd dispersed shortly thereafter. In Boston crowds that filled the streets before bulletin boards received word of the executions in silence.

Dispatches from various cities told of a day of unremitting watchfulness, with public and semi-public buildings, transportation and public service facilities under heavy guard.

The told, for the most part, of strike calls that received little response, of mass meetings animated but orderly, which were dispersed in the main without trouble, though a Pennsylvania state trooper was shot and killed yesterday in Acmetonia, Pa., and scores of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers were arrested in various cities.

In New York City the entire force of 12,000 police was on duty and six companies of infantry and two machine gun companies, with wartime ammunition issuance, were held in reserve on Governor's Island.

In St. Louis police ejected a crowd of 100 persons who tried to hold a Sacco-Vanzetti memorial in the Labor Lyceum Temple. One woman was arrested.

One hundred and twenty-seven sympathizers were arrested in San Francisco as they passed the hall of justice. These arrests climaxed a day of unrest, in which three demonstrations were blocked. Police rushed the first, a mass meeting, and prevented speakers from addressing the gathering.

Chicago police were on watch, armed with machine guns, shotguns and tear bombs. Aurora D'Angelo, 13-year-old leader of two radical demonstrations, was again held by the police after having been released on bond. The chief of detectives reported that he had information that she planned a violent demonstration.

Four men were arrested in Jersey City. One of them, police said, was armed and another had a mysterious bag.

In Detroit police broke up a mass of several thousand men and women in a demonstration at city hall. Banners were knocked down with nightsticks.

Pittsburgher Leader In Sacco Fight

Pittsburgh was represented in the unsuccessful campaign to keep Sacco and Vanzetti from the electric chair by a young, aggressive Italian lawyer, Michael A. Mussmanno, who first broke into prominence as counsel for Albert Carelli, Blue Bandanna gangster.

As the delegate of 50,000 Western Pennsylvania sympathizers, Musmanno joined forces with Arthur D. Hill, chief counsel for the doomed Massachusetts men, and spent eight weeks in Boston battling for the prisoners whose fate concerned nations. It was Musmanno who last night, when all hope was abandoned, rushed to the Boston jail with a plea to talk to Sacco and Vanzetti.

In the Carelli case, Musmanno obtained a full pardon for the Bloomfield boy, although Carelli later was jailed on other charges. And when Joseph Valotta was convicted of the murder of Patrolman John Couch, Musmanno's efforts brought a commutation of sentence.

PASSENGER HOLDS UP AND ROBS CAB DRIVER

M. W. Eicher, 6333 Walnut street, taxi cab driver, reported to the police that he had ben held up by a passenger in his cab at Forty-seventh and Butler street at 3 o'clock this morning and robbed of $15.

'RATHER POISON THAN HOME'

"Snap out of it." This expression in a letter her daughter received from a boy friend was one of the reasons that Mrs. Nellie Jenkins, of 7142 Monticello street, had her daughter, Mary Ellen Jenkins, 18, arrested on a charge of incorrigibility. Another reason was that her daughter refused to go in training to become a nurse. The young woman was arraigned before Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court this morning, and when she told the magistrate she would rather drink poison than return home, he turned her over to Morals' court workers.

"I Am Innocent"—Vanzetti "Long Live Anarchy!"—Sacco

SACCO

"I wish to tell you I am innocent and never committed any crime, but sometimes some sin. I thank you Mr. Warden for everything you have done for me. I am innocent of all crime, not only of this one, but all. I am an innocent man. I wish to forgive some people for what they are now doing to me."—Vanzetti's last words.

"Viva L'Anarchia" (Long live anarchy). Farewell my wife and child and all my friends."—Sacco.

When the work of the guards was almost complete, he looked around and said, "Good evening, gentlemen."

Then, just as the head straps were being placed, his last utterance was, "Farewell, mother!"

Sister, Wife Embrace, As Death Knell Sounds

By PEARL GROSS,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—With horrifying solemnity, the minutes ticked away on the clock in the little room where Luigia Vanzetti waited the final chapter in her brother's life.

In the apartment of a member of the defense committee West End, Boston, Luigia fell on her knees as a telephone bell rang. It was just five minutes of twelve. Mrs. Rosa Sacco ran to answer it. She heard the words that spelled doom for Sacco and Vanzetti.

In terrible despair Luigia and Rosa clung together—Luigia praying tearfully with a rosary in her hand, but Rosa Sacco upheld to the last moment the paganism of her husband. She huddled into a chair, her body rocked with sobs. The two women made a strange contrast in the dimly lighted room.

CHIMES SOUND DOOM.

As the steeple chimes boomed the midnight hour, a murmur rose from the watchers outside the house.

"Madeiros is gone."

Like a sigh of pain, Rosa repeated the words. Realization pressed in upon her and with a low moan, she sank to the floor again shrieking bitterly:

"My husband. My Nicolo. Alone. How terrible—"

And the minutes passed. Again the word went out:

"Sacco is dead."

Eyes turned to poor Luigia, counting the beads of her rosary—the pretty rosary she carried 5,000 miles on the journey to say a last farewell to her brother.

Without knowing a word of English Luigia understood. Nobody dared to tell her. Bartolomeo Vanzetti was that moment being fastened to the electric chair. In a moment his body would grow rigid and then limp. As the death-dealing current passed through his body, Luigia Vanzetti must have felt that last quiver. She was like a frightened pathetic little nun as she knelt on the floor, lips pressed tight together. A few words tumbled from her lips.

"I came to bring peace to the soul of my brother—"

She was treated at the South Side Hospital for a wound on the left leg. Evelyn Hester, 16, of 411 St. Joseph street, was bitten on the left arm by a dog owned by M. Pelletini, of 232 Jasper street. In each case the animal was ordered tied up.

BEDFORD, Pa., Aug. 23.—Among the relics recently presented to the Blair County Historical Society at Altoona was an iron thimble made in the blacksmith shop of David Amick, at Clearville, Md., in 1750. It was the property of Mrs. Margaret Pittman and was presented to the society by P. W. Snyder.

Hapgood Plans Drive For Office Here

Powers Hapgood, youthful Pittsburgh radical held in the Psycopathic Hospital in Boston for his protests against the death of Sacco and Vanzetti, is expected to return to Pittsburgh as soon as he is released to begin his campaign for the office of county commissioner.

He filed papers for this office on the Labor party ticket some weeks ago. Hapgood has been arrested many times as a radical and each time he either paid a fine or posted bond for an appeal.

The young man left Yale four years ago and when he took up with a group of radicals he severed family relations with his father, a wealthy Indianapolis packer. Since that time Hapgood has traveled about the country mixing in industrial uprisings. He also went abroad and worked in the mines in several countries. A few months ago he was escorted from the speakers' platform at a meeting of the United Mine Workers of America in Indianapolis.

HELD IN SACCO CASE

SECOND TIME

Powers Hapgood, Pittsburgh Socialist and one of sympathizers who engaged in futile attempts to stay the fate of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, was arrested in Boston last night. It was the second time he had been placed in custody for his activities in behalf of the men. He was taken to a Boston hospital for observation by a psychiatrist.

"Duty Clear," Fuller Denies Tearful Clemency Plea

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—"I'm sorry, but my duty is outlined."

With these words the doom of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti was sealed.

They were spoken by Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, a scant half hour before prison guards beckoned the fishmonger and the shoeman to follow them on the last walk on earth.

They were spoken to Mrs. Rose Sacco, devoted wife, and Miss Luigi Vanzetti, devoted sister.

The women had been ushered into the Governor's office at the state house and had made a final and tearful plea for mercy.

BURGLAR SHOT, BUT ESCAPES

A wounded man without a right shoe is being hunted today by East End police. When Patrolman Daniel Brady saw a man breaking into the home of Andrew Lyle, 115 Stratford avenue, last night, he chased the house-breaker and fired two shots. One of the bullets is believed to have hit the fleeing man. In running, the man lost his right shoe, which was recovered by the officer.

POLICE BREAK UP POLITICAL BRAWLS

The revolt against the city administration being waged by part of the Leslie faction headed by Edward M. Kenna, former chairman of the Second Ward, has spread to the Seventh, the home ward of Mayor Charles H. Kline.

There, as in other places where the revolt developed earlier, a contest for the Republican aldermanic nomination furnishes the excuse for the battle.

In the Seventh Ward the city administration is supporting Alderman C. A. Burke, who is seeking re-election. The first rival to enter the field against Burke was Charles E. Loughney. Kenna, who recently moved to the Seventh from the Second, then entered Frank J. Boyle as his candidate. R. E. Zuker, running on an anti-Klan ticket, is a fourth asperant.

Kenna has not been able as yet to solidify the Leslie forces in the ward behind Boyle, as Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, another resident of the district, is reported to be aiding Burke's fight for another term.

Rumors that either Alderman R. G. Dever, seeking another term in the Fourteenth, or P. F. Casey, one of his opponents, would withdraw today were denied by friends of both candidates. In that ward, which is the home of Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon, and his nephew, W. L. Mellon, chairman of the Republican State Committee, Kenna is making another bid for control, with Sol S. Goldsmith as his entry in the aldermanic contest. The city administration has not yet come out for a candidate in that ward, where there are seven asperants, the strongest being Sylvester Herman, Casey, Dever and Goldstein.

Recent street fights in the Second Ward, where Kenna is supporting his brother, Bernard J. Kenna, for re-election as constable, against James J. McManus, city administration candidate, were followed last night by brawls in the First Ward, where Alderman A. M. Maloney is opposed by Thomas A. Finnigan, ward chairman. Fists, clubs and stones were weapons in fights at Gist and Forbes and Fifth and Magee. The battlers fled when police reached the scenes.

DEFUNCT BANK GIVEN CLAIM

The composition of a claim of the defunct Pittsburgh Deposit and Title Company, accepting $2,500 for a mortgage of $6,500, was allowed by Judge George V. Moore in Common Pleas Court today on petition of Peter G. Cameron, Pennsylvania Secretary of Banking, in charge of the assets of the institution.

The petition showed that the bank accepted a second mortgage for $6,500 from Richard B. Cooney and Henrietta Rohrkaste Cooney on January 25, 1924, after a first mortgage on the same property in Knoxville was given to Bertha B. Galbraith January 3, 1924, for $10,000.

The petition set forth that L. T. Stevenson, an appraiser, placed the value of the property at $11,500.

NEW CASTLE BIDS FOR THIRD CLASS CITIES MEET

NEW CASTLE, Aug. 23.—This city will bid for the 1928 convention of League of Third Class Cities at the annual convention today in Wilkes-Barre. It would be held as a memorial to the late James A. Gardiner, former New Castle city solicitor, who was known as the "father of the league."

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Finis, Black bottom, welcome back, one-step. The dancing masters of America, assembled in convention here, gave this news out to a breathless world last night. Besides the one-step of 1914, the dancing style of 1927 will include also the Charleston.

COOLIDGE IN YELLOWSTONE PARK

PRESIDENT'S BODYGUARD INCREASED

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Old Faithful geyser, well known to thousands of America's tourists, was the goal of President Coolidge as he moved forward today on his tour of Yellowstone National Park.

The President's party is expected to spend tonight at Old Faithful Inn not far from the famous geyser that spurts upwards at intervals of one hour.

It is not certain where the President and Mrs. Coolidge, with their son John, will go in the park, or how long they will stay, but the formal itinerary includes many of the important sights of interest.

Arriving in the Yellowstone shortly after noon Monday, the President's party left the train at Gardiner, Mont., and drove five miles to Mammoth, where they spent the night.

President Coolidge retired early last night and did not hear of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti until this morning, although it was not believed President Coolidge would be troubled by any demonstration of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers that might be in this territory, the quarters where the President slept was guarded heavily throughout the night.

BOMB DROPS ON CROWD MAKING RUN ON BANK

HONG KONG, Aug. 23.—One person was killed at Canton when a bomb was thrown from a motor car into the grounds of the Central Bank, as crowds of patrons were streaming into the institution to secure silver coins in exchange for paper currency.

A New Invention

Pittsburgh is always doing something great to win the world's acclaim.

Now it is a new food discovery—so good that the very thought of it makes you hungry; so beneficial that you will eat it constantly for the happiness of health.

In Heinz Rice Flakes, the House of Heinz and the Heinz research specialists in Mellon Institute have transformed rice into most deliciously crisp, golden-brown flakes with a popcorn flavor.

Furthermore, this process, owned and used exclusively by Heinz, so utilizes the natural roughage of the rice that it imparts a moisture-absorbing quality which is one of Nature's best eliminative aids.

Eat Heinz Rice Flakes for happiness and health! Give them to the children.

Furnace-tending worries are GONE in homes that burn Clairton Nut Coke

Feeding a furnace with heavy black coal all day long is not an easy matter for anyone, man or woman. It means constant annoyance, dirty hands, heavy lifting with constant chopping of huge lumps. And worst of all, black walls, soiled decorations and a smoky neighborhood.

Not so when Clairton Nut Coke is used, for Clairton is small, light and porous. It burns with a long-lingering heat, cuts down the number of furnace-feedings to only two a day. A feeding in the morning keeps the home warm all day long. Another before retiring finds the house still cozily warm in the morning.

Sold and Guaranteed by Responsible Coal Dealers

Try Clairton this winter. Its low cost makes it the most economical fuel on the market

LOWEST FIND FRIEND IN JAIL ANGEL

HAS DEDICATED HER LIFE TO AID FALLEN

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

"I believe every human being in the world is entitled to one chance to come back after he has made a mistake. But I think second offenders should pay."

That is the belief of Pittsburgh's "Jail Angel," Miss Annie McFedries, who for 29 years has been a ministering saint to nearly every sinner or innocent victim who entered the walls of the Allegheny county jail. Bullets fired in the escape of Paul Jaworski and Jack Vasbender from the county jail almost ended her career.

She is a woman with a heart "as big as the world." But no one can accuse her of being a "soft sob sister." Her hand is out to all in need—if they are worthy and she feels they are not bad at heart.

But she will work as hard to mete out punishment to a second offender and see that society is protected from a dangerous person as she will to see that a first offender gets a chance to come back. And Annie McFedries does not go poking around looking for trouble or for some one to reform. That is another point in her favor and one that has won for her more friends than perhaps any other woman in the city.

"CURED BY PRAYER."

Yesterday she told how she happened to start in her career as a missionary to the jail.

It was an interesting story. She has never been paid a cent of salary for her job as city missionary. Just 44 years ago Miss McFedries came from Scotland with her brother. She was a helpless invalid. Doctors had said she would never walk. For fifteen years she had been entirely dependent upon others to help her about.

"Prayer," declares the little 71-year-old missionary, "gave me back my health. I was lifted up in answer to my pleas to God. I promised Him I would devote my life to others more unfortunate than myself. When I was miraculously healed by Divine power I kept my word to Him.

More than a hundred babies owe their happy homes to the Angel—babies who were nameless waifs when they fell into her hands.

Murderers have listened to her prayers and knelt with her before they went to their deaths. Men and women have looked into her blue grey eyes and sworn their innocence, and she has believed, looked into their hearts and battled for them as though she were battling for her own child.

SAVIOR OF GIRLS.

Hundreds of girl victims of temptation would give their lives for the little Scotch woman. These are girls who were understood and helped by her and who are now married and living in happy homes with babies of their own.

Clara Lutz, who was vindicated a few months ago after being accused of murdering her young husband, George Lutz, in their dairy on the North Side, is one of Miss McFedries' staunchest friends.

The little old missionary's eyes lighted as she told of Clara:

"Bless her heart, I saw her just the other day and she looked like a girl. She is going to business college—making good every day. I know as well as that there is a God above me that Clara didn't kill her husband. It was a sad affair. Many are the hours we prayed together and I left the jail with my heart breaking because I knew she was innocent."

When Annie McFedries is forced to give up her work in the jail a bright light will go out.

BOX-CARS DERAILED DOWNTOWN

Three box-cars were derailed on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near Smithfield station, Carson street, as the result of a broken air hose, according to trainmen. Photo shows box-car with end smashed. The others were undamaged. Workmen quickly opened the tracks.

WARD BURGESS FREED ON MAIL FRAUD CHARGE

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 23.—Ward Burgess, former Omaha millionaire, president of the defunct M. E. Smith and Burgess-Nash Stores of Omaha, on trial here for the past five weeks for using the mails to defraud, was acquitted. Judge J. W. Woodrough ordered a verdict of not guilty for Burgess and his two associates, Frank Alforth and Morey V. Porter. More than ten million dollars was lost in the crash. Many Chicago and New York bankers lost heavily.

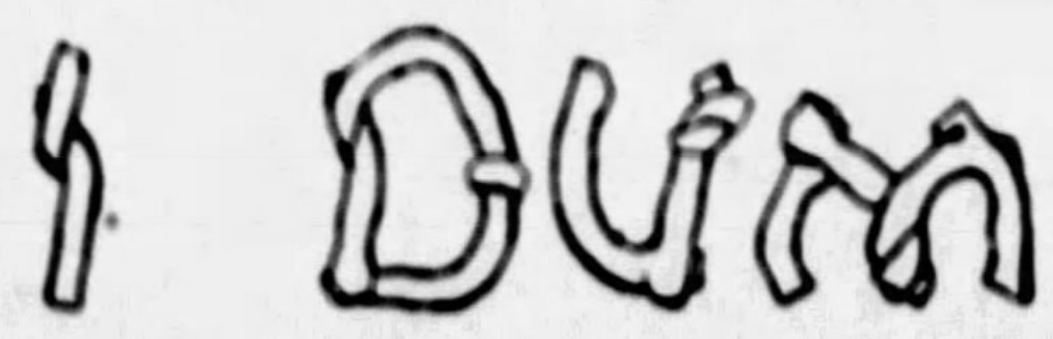
How to cross a BRIDGE PARTNER —and get away with it

In some states, particularly the state of matrimony, trumping a partner's ace is a crime more to be feared than shooting a Ford out of season.

Pretzeleers have found a way out. They make sure there's always a big plate of O-So-Guds alongside the card table. Then when the injured partner gets fairly incandescent with blistering rage, the pretzeleer bites out a few letters like this:



Now, who could continue to talk mean after getting such a sweetly contrite answer? Not your other half, surely.

Crispy, crunchy, salty pretzels baked by Uneeda Bakers smooth over many difficulties. They help make things pleasant at parties and picnics. They're good any time with iced drinks. They're fine for between-meals and before-we-go-to-bed lunches.

And try them with soup, with salad, with cheese, with dessert. Give them to the children for piecing. They are very easy to digest.

Be sure to ask for Uneeda Bakers' pretzels.

O-SO-GUD REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. PRETZELS

O-So-Guds are made in the famous bow-knot shape that pretzeleers know so well. Your grocer will sell you any amount up to a ton.

SLIM JIM REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Slim Jims are one-bite pretzels—smaller than the bow-knot shape, but just as good in the eating. Sold in handy packages.

GIRL'S TRAINING HERE WINS IN HAWAII

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Aug. 23.—Bill Peet, former well-known Pittsburgh newspaper man, whom the fates have chosen as the most famous member of the Peet generations, has had to stand by and watch the spotlight switch gracefully to his wife, Mrs. Jessie S. Peet, and daughter, Elizabeth.

With one year's work, Mrs. Peet was recently graduated from University of Hawaii with a bachelor of arts degree. And, to further hide Bill's identity, daughter Elizabeth was graduated from Alioani Grade School with honors that reflected the thorough training of Pittsburgh's elementary schools. Miss Elizabeth's splendid showing brought from her, by request of school authorities, the information that she had been grounded in early education at Roosevelt Public School of Pittsburgh.

Proud of the conquests of his kin, Mr. Peet continues as a prominent factor of The Honolulu Advertiser.

U. S. ASKS PARIS DRUG PACT

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Two international moves, striking at liquor smuggling and illegal traffic in narcotics, have been disclosed by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Charles S. Dewey.

Proposals that the French government aid in suppressing rum smuggling into this country from the West Indies were lodged at Paris by Dewey, he announced after a European tour.

To effect a unified and stronger control over narcotic shipments Dewey announced that he will recommend to Secretary Mellon the appointment of Col. Arthur Woods to represent this government abroad. Woods, a former New York police commissioner, who is now in Paris, would seek executive agreements with foreign government.

NORTHERN ARMY HEMS NANKING

By Universal Service.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 23.—Nanking faces a shattering attack by 50,000 Northern troops. The Northerners are massed at Pukow, across the river from Nanking. They plan to launch the attack as soon as boat transportation for the troops can be provided.

Already the Northerners are shelling the city of Nanking, which is in dire straits. There is no electricity, public services are suspended and the inhabitants are besieged.

Gen. Sun Chuang-Fang, commanding the Northerners, has attempted to cross the Yangtse Kiang, twelve miles below Nanking, planning to march on the city from that point. This attempt failed.

CALLERY DERAILMENT DELAYS B. & O. TRAINS

LEAVING CABINET FOR '28 RACE DISAVOWED

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover has no intention of leaving the Coolidge cabinet to enter the 1928 presidential race, he told friends on returning to the capital from California today.

Suggestions that Mr. Hoover was to retire and become an active aspirant for the presidency were met with the statement that the Secretary believes the Republican party should insist that President Coolidge accept the nomination—despite the executive's now famous "I don't choose to run" declaration.

Mr. Hoover is not "talking or thinking politics," it was explained by his friends here today.

Returning to his desk at the commerce department this morning, Mr. Hoover had conferences with departmental executives and mapped out a program to clear up present pending problems by August 31 when he leaves for a second trip to the Mississippi river flood area on an inspection of relief work.

While on that inspection, Hoover will discuss with southern state and city officials various plans for permanent flood relief which have been advocated and which are to be presented to congress next winter.

CHICAGO'S NEWEST GIRL BANDIT "REALLY PRETTY"

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—A gun-tossin' brunette, about 21, who is said to be really pretty, is Chicago's latest bandit queen. With three "boy friends" she entered the home of Mrs. Anna Posus, ostensibly to rent a garage. When Mrs. Posus opened her purse to return some change for payment offered, the girl twirled a gun about her fingers and ordered her to "hold 'em up." The bandits obtained about $85 in cash and considerable jewelry.

Removes Cause of High Blood Pressure and Rheumatism

High blood pressure—the chief cause of heart trouble and apoplexy—is usually the result of constipation, sluggish liver, overworked kidneys and consequent accumulation of body poisons by the blood.

The quickest and safest way to correct such a condition is to remove the cause—and Lithuric Salts should do this quickly and pleasantly. Take it before breakfast as directed and its harmless, beneficial mineral salts and fruit acids will act directly on the liver, gently but positively flush the intestines and assist the kidneys. Lithuric Salts will also increase the alkalinity of the blood, neutralize uric acid and thus relieve rheumatism, backache, etc.

If you have high blood pressure or rheumatism, begin the use of Lithuric Salts at once and get back the perfect health that makes life worth living. Large, inexpensive bottles at any May Drug Co. Store, or of any other good druggist.

Save yourself this bother

ALWAYS watching your crankcase—always fearing you'll run out of oil. . . . Is this one of your motoring worries? Here's a way to kill it:

Use the newly perfected Atlantic Motor Oil—"Heavy" for summer—and you'll stop evaporation. It is evaporation which, with ordinary oils, is chiefly responsible for excessive oil consumption.

Atlantic "Heavy" will not thin down or evaporate under high motor heat and torrid summer temperatures. An Atlantic improvement—one of the greatest in the industry; and one which automotive engineers have long felt possible.

Atlantic "Heavy" is correct summer grade for most cars and trucks. Get a filling. Then watch your oil mileage shoot upward and oil expense downward.

One-gallon, five-gallon and one-quart cans, and in bulk—at all Atlantic dealers and service stations.

Evaporation tests prove the remarkable quality of this oil

At 760° Fahrenheit (more than three and one-half times the temperature of boiling water) Atlantic "Heavy," under repeated tests, showed an evaporation loss of less than 1%.

Twelve other representative "heavy" oils, under identically the same tests, showed evaporation losses ranging up to 42%.

Dolores Del Rio and Baxter To Play Leads in "Ramona," California's Favorite Story

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—All the prospective candidates for Allesandro can now turn their optics in another direction. The choice has been made. Warner Baxter, he who scorned the romances of the Wild West, has signed a contract with Edwin Carewe to play the leading male role opposite Dolores Del Rio in "Ramona."

"Ramona" is perhaps California's most popular novel. Ramona's marriage place still stands in San Diego—a mecca for tourists who visit there each year. Helen Hunt Jackson made a fortune with her novel, which has been read by every loyal Californian as well as by millions of other readers.

Edwin Carewe now has the difficult task of pleasing all those who have preconceived ideas of "Ramona." So far his selections are excellent. Miss Del Rio and Mr. Baxter are certainly the types described by Miss Jackson. The great trouble, as I see it, will be reconciling this somewhat old-fashioned tale with our modern ideas. Still, Mr. Carewe is an intelligent director. He knows how to build up dramatic situations, and there are a number in "Ramona."

Another screen vamp is going straight. Merna Loy, whose unusual type of beauty started her in life as Warner Brothers' most promising screen siren, will have one of the featured roles in "The Girl from Chicago," by Arthur Somers Roche. Mr. Roche originally called his story "Business Is Best." But what's a name among friends? It is to be a Warner Brothers classic of the screen and Miss Loy is to have the support of a cast described as all-star.

Virginia Valli and the Fox Company never seem to remain apart for very long. She is not under contract to them, but she seems to be exceedingly popular with all their directors. Her next picture is a sex comedy-drama titled "Ladies Must Dress." Phew! That's some name, eh, what? Anyway, Miss Valli is to have Hallam Cooley for her leading man.

LAFOLLETTE HEADS BILL IN SHERIDAN

Heading the stage acts in the Sheridan Square yesterday, "The Great LaFollette" lived up to his program announcement, "the man of many faces." The performance was a novelty in several respects. On the screen the feature was "Married Alive," a satire on some modern views on matrimony, the trend of the picture following a comedy vein. In the cast were Lou Tellegen, Margaret Livingston and Matt Moore. "The Heel and Toe Revue" was a dancing offering that included a wide range of the art of terpsichore. McIntyre and Moore appeared in a combination of songs, dances and comedy, with topical jests of a timely nature. The Crawfords, a young man and woman, called their act "A Little Bit of Everything"—and it was. All they did was wire-walking, juggling, tumbling, trapeze feats and other performances. An organlogue by John Edward Mitchell, news events, comedy and a fable on the screen were other attractions.

CAMERAPHONE FILM IS "RUNNING WILD"

"Running Wild," a new screen comedy starring W. C. Fields, is the principal attraction in the Cameraphone this week. Fields is seen in the role of a brow-beaten husband who is hypnotized into a roaring lion and who overcomes his inferiority complex. The cast includes Mary Brian, Claud Buchanan, Marie Shotwell, Frederick Burton, J. Moy Bennett and Tom Madden. The production was directed by Gregory La Cava, the man responsible for several other films featuring Fields. A brief comedy, news pictures and music complete the bill.

GIRL ORCHESTRA IN DAVIS

"Flaming Youth," as personified by Miss Babe Egan and her "Hollywood Redheads," an aggregation of girls who performed in the ensemble as a jazz orchestra, with individual specialities, lent warmth and color to the stage portion of the program of Keith-Albee vaudeville and photoplays in the Davis yesterday. They gave what proved to be a pleasing presentation of syncopated melodies, Miss Egan acting as leader and violin player. Songs and dances were introduced by several members of the organization, the offering as a whole being of a kind to merit the hearty approval accorded it. Vera Michelena and Fred Hildebrand frolicked comedy and songs, with an original twist, as another feature act on the bill. Jimmy Burchill, Sylvia Rich, Helen Y. Tijan, Mimi Youde and Mildred McClintock, in "Bits of Musical Comedy," did some expert stepping that was liked. Burchill specialized in speedy and tricky shuffles, and the girls exhibited toe, Spanish and other types of dancing. "Sugar Foot," successor to the Charleston and "Black Bottom," also was shown. Verdi and Fennell, Italian dialect comedians, earned laughs with their comedy. Lloyd and Brice burlesqued hand acrobatics for a number of merry minutes. Lillian Faulkner had a novelty minnikin performance. Johnny Hines, in "All Aboard," principal screen offering, portrayed a tourists' guide who had plenty of adventures aboard ship and in Egypt. It was a comedy of feature length. The short comedy was Billie Bevan in "Peaches and Plumbers." "Topics of the Day" and news pictures completed the bill.

MUSIC FEATURED IN HARRIS

A entertaining program of vaudeville, a feature photoplay, "The Clown," which presents a story of circus life, and short screen features comprise the bill in the Harris this week. The cast of the photoplay includes William V. Mong, Dorothy Revier and Johnnie Walker. The highlight of the vaudeville is an act, "Strings and Strains," offered by a miniature orchestra, and Minet Andre, clever feminine dancer and singer. Bob George sings, capers and chatters in a manner that wins the laughs. Frank Layton and Ethel May also hand out a lot of funny chatter in a skit, "At the Junction." Lloyd Nevada and company offers a novelty act of mystery, in which birds, human beings and all manner of things appear and disappear in a twinkling of an eye. Eckert and Francis make a lot of laughs out of nonsense. Stanley and Attree are entertaining acrobats. Howard Webb is responsible for the organlogue.

THRILL DRAMA PITT BILL

Players of the George Sharp Stock Company are handing out thrills, chills and laughs in the Pitt this week. The vehicle they are doing is "The Gorilla," which seemingly pokes fun at the Mystery Play and which, at the same time, is a melodramatic mystery thriller itself. It certainly handed last night's audience a real thrill wallop.

The action of the play is laid in the country estate of Cyrus Stevens in Long Island. From the rise of the first curtain, with the introduction of the first character, one Jessie Lee, a colored servant, played by Leah Winslow, the atmosphere of mystery is cast over the audience. Then the entrance of Mr. Stevens and a voice over a radio, announcing the escape of the Gorilla, further adds to the tenseness of the atmosphere. With the appearance of Alice Denby, niece of Stevens, and Arthur Marsden, presumably a playwright, things begin to happen. Then next come Mulligan and Garrity, a couple of detectives, who say their "sleuthing" with laughs. As the action of the play progresses, moving from the living room of the home to the cellar and then to the garage, more mysterious figures enter into the pictures.

And all the while last night, between gripping its chairs one minute and laughing uproariously the next, the audience seemingly spent an entertaining evening.

To divulge more of the story is to spoil it for theatergoers yet to see it. Sufficient is it to say that when the final curtain drops it brings to a close a highly perfectly mystery production.

Anne Forrest, Herbert Clark, John W. Moore, Miss Winslow, Neil Hamilton, Edwin Vail and Aubrey Beattie—all contributed to the success of the production. Percy Kilbride and Joseph Lawrence, appearing as the detectives, Garrity and Mulligan, the same roles which they carried on the road with the vehicle, certainly added much that distinguished, the local presentation as a high class production.

THURSTON HALL IS COMING TO PITT

Announcement comes from the Pitt to the effect that Thurston Hall, a great favorite as leading man with the Harry Davis Stock Company a few seasons ago, and star of many Broadway productions, will appear in the Pitt with the George Sharp Production Stock Company next week in "Laff That Off."

"Bozo" Snyder's new review will open the Gayety next Monday afternoon, when this theater will present a decorative transformation, murals of gold and green tone throughout auditorium and lobby, producing a new attractiveness in the Gayety.

The Keith-Albee vaudeville bill in the Davis next week will include the Four Gregg Sisters, professionally known as the "Musical Misses," presenting a program of melodies.

Jessie McDonald, leading woman of "Kandy Kids," this week's burlesque in the Academy, is a native of Canada, where she made her stage debut as a chorus girl. She is a singer and dancer.

Heading the vaudeville in the Sheridan Square the last half of this week will be the Four Chocolate Dandies, a quartet that was featured in a musical review.

Melodies will be supplied by William Seaberry and band in the Grand next week. Ceasar Nasi, brilliant tenor, also will be heard.

Just three minutes—and the toughest, most painful hard or soft corn or callous is out—root and all. Shur-off is an entirely new remedy which stops all pain the instant it is applied; is positively guaranteed not to irritate or affect healthy skin, but so quickly softens the corn or callous that in a few minutes you can remove it easily. Store, or of any other good druggist, follow the simple directions and end foot misery at once.

'METROPOLIS' IN GRAND

By MILDRED FILLMORE.

Greetings, dear folks.

I saw a strange and weird picture yesterday in the Grand. "Metropolis" is its title, and besides being strange and weird it is a revelation of the possibilities of picture making. It is a picture rather than a story picture, an importation from Germany. I admit being one of those chesty persons to whom the scream of the American eagle is the sweetest of music and I think that photoplays made in the grand old U. S. A. are the best in the world, but I have to admit there is an occasional good one made abroad. "Metropolis" is one that makes the grade. As a picture only—not as a story.

Art in Europe appears to mean something different from the American idea and "Metropolis" is "art" with a European slant. It visions the city of the future. It mingles with it a story of a man who controls a city. All the industry is his and the workers are virtually slaves. Actually there are two cities—one a wonderful conception of a great community in which traffic is carried at several grades. There is one view in which airplanes are seen soaring around lofty buildings, motor cars traversing streets at a dizzy height above ground, street cars at another grade and railroad trains at a still lower one. It is bewildering and startling. Beneath this city is another—under ground—where the workers live.

An inventor in the employ of the city's master creates a machine that is human in all of its actions, but it has no soul. It is made in exact replica of a girl whom the master's son loved and who preached the gospel of good will to the workers. She had been made a prisoner so that her figure could be copied and when she escapes she finds that her double had been preaching rebellion. The result is the workers destroy a great machine and their own city is flooded. All but the children are above ground and these are saved by the girl with the aid of the master's son. It all ends with the master and workmen shaking hands and agreeing that each needs the other.

The thing that impressed me most greatly was the illusion of immensity. It was really an awed reviewer who left the theater after seeing buildings that towered into the sky; machines so great that hundreds of men worked on one alone; electricity that played tricks on the imagination and settings that seemed dreams of the future.

Names of those in the cast mean nothing, but the actors were real actors. They all seemed to have eyes that burned through the beholder—and hands—oh, those hands! To see them reaching leaves an impression that will linger long. Those Germans certainly know how to direct.

It is a strange and weird picture, but one worth while.

Also on the bill is a girls' orchestra, "Parisian Redheads," of whom the audience could not get enough. The offering included an eccentric dance by Grace Browne, saxophone player, that made a hit. Pat Kelly, tenor, sang a couple of songs well. News pictures and a comedy rounded out the program.

Bonjour, mes amis. See you later.

"BEWARE OF WIDOWS" IS SHOWN IN CAMEO

Laura La Plante's latest starring photoplay, "Beware of Widows," is the current feature in the Cameo. The production is based on the stage farce of Owen Davis. The action of the piece, for the most part, is laid on a house boat. There are plenty of comic and melodramatic episodes. The cast includes Bryant Washburn, Walter Hiers, Wesley Ruggles, Paulette Duval, Tully Marshall, Catherine Carver, Heinie Conklin and Otto Hoffman. A Snookums comedy, the latest issue of International News and a special musical program complete the bill.

JETTA GOUDAL PICTURE HAS SCHILDKRAUT

Joseph Schildkraut and Victor Varconi are playing brothers in "The Forbidden Woman," which stars Jetta Goudal. Paul Stein is directing.

NEW PENN OPEN LABOR DAY

Marcus Loew announces that Loew's and United Artists' Penn Theater, now nearing completion, Penn avenue and Sixth street, will be opened to the public Labor Day, September 5. Doors will be open at 12:30 p. m.

The policy of the theater will include the presentation of first run feature photoplays and stage offerings. The seating capacity will be 3,600 with spacious lobbies, foyers and entrances. Loew's and United Artists' Penn is the first theater in Pittsburgh to be furnished with the newest equipment for the presentation of stage revues as they are offered in the leading New York and Chicago theaters. The stage is said to be the most completely equipped in the world.

The opening screen attraction will be Aileen Pringle and Lew Cody in "Adam and Evil," a comedy drama. Ted Lewis and his band will be the principal stage presentation. Six units of shorter divertisements also will be included in the opening program.

The theater will be opened daily, with the exception of Labor Day, at 9 a. m., showing continuous performances until 11 p. m. The de luxe entertainment will begin at 1.30, 3:30, 7 and 9 p. m. The prices will range from 25 cents to 75 cents, the latter being the charge of admission to the mezzanine loges.

PICTURES HELD OVER BEGIN SECOND WEEK

Two interesting photoplays which were reviewed in this department last week are being retained for showing a second week, both drawing good-sized audiences to the presentations yesterday.

They are "Old Ironsides," attraction in the Nixon, and "The Big Parade," which "went big" in Loew's Aldine last week.

DON ALVARADO IN LEAD IN D. W. GRIFFITH PLAY

Don Alvarado will not play Felipe in "Ramona," Dolores del Rio's first starring vehicle for United Artists. Instead, he will play the male in David Wark Griffith's "A Romance of Old Spain."

A Smile

That charms with gloriously clear teeth, now yours

THAT off-color teeth can be given dazzling whiteness quickly is now a proved dental fact.

It's been found that dingy teeth come simply from a film that forms on teeth. A stubborn film old-type dentifrices did not successfully remove. That's why brushing failed you.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel that film now—a sort of slippery coating. Beneath it are the white teeth you envy.

It keeps your smile unattractive because it absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. It invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea because it breeds bacteria.

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, a scientific combatant has been found. Leading dentists widely urge it. All druggists have it. Works wonders on dingy teeth. 10-day test will be sent for coupon if you wish.

ACADEMY OFFERS "KANDY KIDS"

"Kandy Kids," a burlesque offering a variety of features, is the bill in the Academy this week. It was presented yesterday with special scenic effects and the costumes are new and attractive. Comedy predominated in several skits in which Max Coleman, Joe Hill and Jack McSorley appeared. Jessie McDonald was conspicuous in songs and in a dance number called "A Bit of the Orient." Gladys McCormack, soprano, sang "Southland" and "Bye Bye, Pretty Baby" pleasingly. Marion O'Neil had a tuneful number in "Indian Jazz." Among the comedy sketches were "Boy Wanted" and "Just Imagination." There were several specialties and the musical program was tuneful. The girls of the chorus danced and sang in a series of contrasting costumes.

FIELDS RUNS WILD ON OLYMPIC SCREEN

W. C. Fields is running wild on the Olympic screen this week and leaving in his wake a trail of laughter. His newest starring picture, titled "Running Wild," the best thing he has done in the movies to date, presents him as a henpecked husband who becomes a human lion and roars his way through five or so reels of good film entertainment. Mary Brian has the leading feminine role. Van and Schenck, popular songsters of the vaudeville stage, are seen and heard as the feature of the Vitaphone portion of the program. They present a group of songs, including "For No Good Reason at All," and "What's Going to Be Next?" Venita Gould, impersonator, offers take-offs of Blossom Seeley, Grace LaRue, Ted Lewis and Caryl Norman, as the second Vitaphone act. The Six Original Brown Brothers, saxophonists, present the final Vitaphone number. News pictures and a cartoon comedy complete the bill.

Weather Conditions.

The eastern high pressure area has diminished to only a narrow ridge extending from the New England coast southwestward over the Ohio Valley and Tennessee to Louisiana. The skies are clear over the Ohio Valley and southward over the gulf states, but along the Atlantic coast cloudy weather prevails this morning and light showers were general during the night from Boston to Jacksonville. Cloudy weather and rains are also prevalent from Oklahoma northward over the plains, extending eastward over northern Illinois, northern Indiana to Lake Erie. This condition is due to a trough of low pressure stretching from the St. Lawrence Valley to Texas.

The northwest high has increased further in pressure, and its crest is now over South Dakota, 30.40 inches at Huron. The high is causing cool weather over the entire northwest, with light frost in northern Minnesota and in Manitoba.

BOGGS & BUHL

Shopping for Beauty

I was parking my car yesterday when someone yodled—"Yaah Hoo!" I looked and coming across the parking space was a strangely familiar figure—yet I didn't recognize her. She came closer, "Glittering Goldfish!" It was Marjory.

But what a changed person she was.

"Why the disguise," I asked. "Disguise. Oh, you mean my tan," said she. "Do you call that tan? Shades of Othello—That's mahogany! Why you're just two shades darker than Midnight. You're a sight! and I added

"Maybe You'll Be White Again by 1937

—Tho I doubt it."

"Meow-Meow, Pussy cat!" mimicked Marjory, "you're jealous. I've been to Atlantic City and you haven't. But look at this," and she poked her left hand in front of my face. A perfectly huge diamond glittered there.

"Ooh! how gorgeous," I shrieked. "I'm tickled silly—when did you get it. So you and Ned are—When is it to be and"—"Heh Heh! Just a minute give me air!" laughed Marjory." Well—I got it in July and it's to be October the 14th and you are to be a bridesmaid and your Best Beloved is to be best man."

"October!" said I — and I looked at her—"Well, I've sure got my job laid out right now—Come on—Don't talk back," and I grabbed her by the arm—steered her across Diamond Street and straight to the elevators.

"Fifth Floor"—called out the elevator boy—"Ladies' Shoes — Lamps — Adoria Beauty Salon"—

And I Hauled Marjory Out Bodily.

By this time she had regained her breath—"Say! What's the idea of manhandling me—it's too hot to be yanked around like this."

"Come on—don't argue or I'll slay you right here—you'll be murdered before you're married instead of after."

"Murdered!" gasped Marjory. "Why? What's wrong."

"Do you expect any self-respecting man to walk up a church aisle with anything that looks like you do," I snapped, "Oh Lordy."

Finally I got her into the Adoria Beauty Salon. We interviewed the consultant. "Could — would anything remove that awful color—She was going to be married in October — big church wedding—Poor Ned B—wasn't John Smith. He wouldn't want a Pocohantas—What could be done!" By this time the consultant was laughing, but she said—"Oh, yes—it can be removed—a special course of Bleaching treatments—and a pink and white bride by October guaranteed." I relaxed—"Where are you going on your Honeymoon," asked the consultant. "Europe," murmured Marjory, looking sort of dazed.

"You'll Certainly Want a Piero Paris Permanent Wave—

it would be lovely in your hair, and such a comfort on the trip." "Yes," I chirped in, "she'll have that too. I don't want poor Ned to remember Europe as the place his wife looked her worst." So Marjory booked appointments for bleaching treatments and a Piero Paris Permanent Wave. Gosh! friends are a lot of responsibility—especially Brides.

Helpfully,

Doris

Source of Beau's Finances Mystifies Sally; Crisis In Family Is Result

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Sally Jerome, 20 and clever and pretty, is the prop and mainstay of her family, which consists of Mrs. Jerome, the twins, Beau and Millie, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for Mr. Peevey downtown afternoons.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives young Ted Sloan, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But Sally refuses. The only man in whom she is interested, however, is John Nye, whose office is opposite Mr. Peevey's. Nye has hired the siren Millie as his stenographer, and Millie is waiting to take the position when he returns from a trip to see his mother, who is ill at a summer resort. Millie, out of work, borrows $2 from Sally to "tide her over." She spends it all and tries to borrow more, but Sally has only enough for the week. Beau, too, is dead broke and tries to borrow some from Sally, who is forced to refuse him, too.

The next night she is amazed when Beau comes home with a guitar that he has long been craving. Millie, too, blossoms out in a brand new pale-blue flannel dress, and Sally wonders where they got the money.

Ted Sloan comes upstairs just as Millie's "sweetie"—a man named DAVIDSON—arrives to take her out for the evening. Millie, who has been refusing to speak to Sally because she refused to let her cut down one of her dresses into a bathing suit, breaks her sulky silence long enough to ask Sally to go into the living room and entertain him while she finishes dressing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

"DEAR ME," thought Sally. "I wonder if this is the way he talks to every girl he meets."

"Oh, me!" she said aloud. "I don't do anything particularly well. I can't sing or play the piano or do any of the smart things most girls can do. I'm just a plug—"

"She can cook!" came Millie's triumphant little voice from the door. She was standing between the curtains that hung there, a perfect picture of youth and loveliness and girlish innocence in her blue dress that matched her blue eyes.

"And she can scrub floors and wash dishes and iron clothes to beat the band," she went on with a soft, cruel little laugh. "Sally's just the dearest old kitchen mechanic that ever was. We couldn't keep house without her."

Sally felt her face going rose-red with shame and embarrassment. Millie's words made her suddenly feel thick-witted and slow and stupid—as if she were a human scrubbing brush, fit for nothing but the grubby tasks of this world.

And yet she knew that what Millie said was not the truth. . . . She was not a scullery maid, even if she did keep house for the family. She was just as clever and smart and up-to-date as Millie, even if she wasn't as well dressed and cunning and pretty. Sally always thought of Millie as having all the looks in the family.

"So Sally's the housekeeper," Davidson said, slowly, and, looking up at him, Sally saw that his eyes were full of kindness. "Well, let me shake hands with you, Sally. You're the only girl I know who can cook a meal—and who isn't ashamed of saying so. Most of the kids that are growing up these days don't know a waffle-iron from a flat-iron."

"I hope you aren't slamming me when you say that," piped up Millie, who was never happy unless she were in the lime-light. "Come on, Davy, let's go if we're going."

She shot Sally a jealous glance from her shallow blue eyes, and bore Davidson off with the air of a war-like Indian hanging his enemy's scalp upon his belt.

"Nice baby, isn't she?" Ted Sloan asked when the pair of them were gone. He stood at the window with his back to the room, looking down into the street that was filled with twilight. "Nice, sweet sister to you."

"Davidson sort of fell for you, didn't he?" he asked quietly, after a little pause.

"Oh, me!" Sally said again. "Who'd look at me when Millie's around?"

"I would," he answered, with a sort of huskiness in his voice. "I would, any day in the week—every day in the week!"

On Sunday Mabel came to have supper and spend the night with the Jeromes.

Beau brought her home with him at 5 o'clock. In his arms was a bulky gray paper package, and upon his head was a new felt hat.

"Bought myself a few socks and things, so you wouldn't have to wear your eyes out mending the old stuff any longer," he said to Sally, with the air of a missionary and a good Samaritan.

"That's nice," his sister answered, and as she spoke a little troubled frown printed itself upon her forehead. . . . She hoped that Beau hadn't spent all of his salary on his new clothing. For with Millie out of work, it was going to be hard work to keep the bills paid unless she borrowed some money from him this week.

That night when she went into his room to turn down the bed, it was littered with the things he had bought. There were six or seven new neckties on the dresser. The top drawer stood open, and it was filled with soft collars still in their glazed-paper envelopes. There were three new shirts—loud-striped ones—on a chair beside the bed, along with a dozen pairs of heavy silk socks.

Sally gave a little gasp of astonishment as she looked at them. The troubled look came into her eyes again. . . . Why, Beau must have spent every nickel of his $40 salary on this stuff. It was all good, all expensive.

Then, as she opened the bottom drawer to put the shirt away, a folded slip of paper fell from them. She laid the shirts down and looked at it. It was the bill for Beau's splendor, and it was for $46.46.

"For the love of little green apples! Where did he get $46?" said Sally, in a horrified whisper. Her eyes darted to one corner of the room, where the guitar stood upright against the wall—the guitar that he had bought three days ago, when he had said he was "flat busted."

Sally did not know exactly what a guitar cost, but she supposed that a good one was pretty expensive. She knew, too, that Beau wouldn't buy one unless it was a good one.

He disliked cheap things, he always said. Even the cigarets that were habitually pasted upon his lower lips were a cork-tipped kind that cost 20 cents a box.

"If I can't have the best, I don't want anything," was one of Beau's favorite sayings. "I'd rather do without!" And he did without very little what he wanted. A man can spend $40 a week upon himself, and have a fairly comfortable time of it.

"Mother must have got her check and turned it over to him," was the conclusion that Sally finally came to, as she put the clothes neatly away in his drawers.

Every month or so a check came from Mr. Jerome for her. Sometimes it was not a very big check, and sometimes it was. The only bad feature of it was that it came at irregular intervals, and that Mrs. Jerome often spent it on foolish luxuries instead of putting it into the bank or paying a grocery bill with it.

Lately she had been turning it over to Beau and Millie, who knew when it was about due, and did not hesitate to ask for money whenever there was any of it in sight.

"Money just runs through my fingers," Mrs. Jerome was wont to say in her helpless, good-natured way, and Beau and Millie were just like her. Born spendthrifts.

"Sally's the tightwad of the family," they often said, especially when she had refused to lend them money for cigarets or perfume or motion-picture magazines.

Sally went now to her mother, who was sitting at the dining room table, reading and finishing her after-dinner coffee. She just would drink coffee at night, even though she stayed awake 'til dawn. She said she couldn't do without it. It kept up her strength—what strength she had.

The table before her was littered with dirty dishes and bread crumbs, and on the other side of it sat Millie, looking over a new woman's magazine. Mabel was reading it, from over her shoulder.

"Say, I thought you two were going to do the dishes for me, so I'd have time to mend Millie's stockings for her!" Sally spoke

Wife to Get $650,000; Wins Decree in Hour

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Charlie Chaplin's price of domestic peace today provided a wealth of figures for the conjecture and gossip of the movie-going and newspaper-reading worlds that know of the film jester and his marital difficulties.

Sixty-two minutes in court yesterday, in which the graying comedian's young wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, won in perfunctory fashion, an interlocutory decree of divorce, probably cost the actor in excess of a million dollars.

His wife, according to the property settlement introduced at the outset of the court hearing and which erased from the trial sensational charges concerning "prominent motion-picture actresses," which spiced her divorce complaint, will receive $625,000 of the million dollar total. To the small sons placed in the wife's custody goes a trust fund of $200,000.

Other items included $10,000 as Mrs. Chaplin's expenses since the separation last November, $22,000 estimated receivers' fees, $60,000 to be paid for the Chaplin boys' support during the next five years while the trust fund is being provided, $17,000 in interest to Mrs. Chaplin on delayed payments and the $14,000 already paid in temporary alimony.

These, with miscellaneous items, swell the total to $954,000 not counting the comedian's attorney fees and the cost of preparing for the trial. Since out of the wife's $625,000 comes almost $100,000 in attorney fees, the actors quintet of counsel is expected to receive no less amount.

INSTRUCTS JURY WITH MODERN DECALOGUE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 23.—Judge Henry A. Fuller, in what may be his last charge to a grand jury after 20 years on the bench, summarized the duties of the jurors after the form of the Ten Commandments. Among the charges were:

"Thou need not investigate, nor criticize, nor give advice. Congress does enough of that. Thou art on a job, not a junket.

"Thou dost not determine guilt nor innocence, since thou art a grand, not a petit jury.

"Thou shalt not ignore liquor indictments because thou dost not like the liquor law, nor automobile indictments because thou dost own or drive an automobile. Bad laws, like good laws, must be enforced. Thou may be thankful thou dost not make the laws.

"Thou shalt not waste time by being unduly inquisitive in cases which arouse thy interest, nor by talking too much.

"Thou shalt get through, and get away quickly."

What's In a Name? —Ask Boleslaum Zalewski

When Boleslaum Zalewski, of Bethel township, decided to be a candidate for constable he thought that a shorter, anglicized name would help his campaign. He, therefore, petitioned Common Pleas Court to change it to Ben W. Smith. Presuming that his request would be granted Zalewski circulated his election petition under the new name—Ben W. Smith. His election papers, filed by John W. Goedicks of Library, are alleged to be invalid because the court has not yet acted on Zalewski's request.

VENANGO CROPS NOT NORMAL

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 23.—The fruit crop of Venango county will be considerably below normal. This was the word today from County Farm Agent E. G. Ifft, who described the season as backward, and pointed out that many trees had been affected by blight and the attack of the beetle. The corn crop still is slow in coming to harvest, and will be less than 60 per cent of normal.

Miss Pittsburgh Didn't Know She Must Train

Live and learn was never a more truthful saying than in the case of a holder of the "Miss Pittsburgh" title. I have always been under the impression that the title meant nothing on one's mind except to enjoy the fruit of victory. But I've found out differently.

Really a prize fighter has "nothing on" a "Miss Pittsburgh." Who would have ever thought of having to train for the Atlantic City national bathing beauty pageant, which will be held next month? It surely was the furthest thought from my mind. Maybe it is not a case of actual training, yet it is a case of careful living.

After a week of hustling through the details of assembling the wardrobe I shall wear at the pageant, orders are now to rest as much as possible and to get plenty of sleep.

There is nothing nicer than sleep, especially in the morning when you just have to get up to go to work. I've always been just like all girls, hating to get up. And yet, now that I can sleep a little later, I find that it is not so easy.

So now I'm getting the needed rest following the first week's rush as a titleholder. But who would have thought a titleholder had to live under training rules?

Self-Styled War 'Ace' Played as 'Joker'

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—"Col. R. Rex Rennee," commander of the Second Division, Lafayette Escadrille, self-styled fourth ranking world war ace of fliers, conqueror of 27 German planes, friend of Nungesser and general terror of the German front, found himself without a job, name, title or reputation.

For "Col. Rennee" is plain Joseph Goldhammer, whose father runs a little pants shop in Far Rockaway. He has never even seen France nor the inside of an airplane.

It's all on account of his swanky automobile. The car was stolen and in looking up its record police found that a man named Goldhammer had sold it to Rennee. Then they found that the two were the same.

But "Col. Rennee" had had a wonderful time, anyway. He had moved into a nice house, spread the story of his fame among the neighbors, and pulled some splendid parties—all to his own glorification.

"It was all a joke," he said today. "I got started in the hoax and couldn't stop."

"Joe always did have funny ideas," said his father.

QUARREL OVER BEES FATAL

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 23.—(AP.)—A neighborhood quarrel over the keeping of bees has resulted in the fatal shooting of one man here.

Thomas B. Stafford, 45, protested to his neighbor, Green V. Meek, 44, concerning the bees kept by Meek, and yesterday asked him to pay him rent on his house, claiming the bees were responsible for keeping the house vacant. Meek refused to pay, and fired, he said, when Stafford put his hand to his hip pocket as if to draw a gun.

The quarrel, of six months' standing, caused at one time a delegation of Meek's neighbors to protest to the city commission, but without result.

Dorothy Dix Says:

DON'T OVERDO YOUR DUTY TO YOUR MOTHER BY UPROOTING HER FROM HER OLD HOME AND TRAN SPLANTING HER IN YOURS.

"WHEN I hear mothers complaining that their children neglect them I think that perhaps they are not so badly off as they think they are," said a whimsical old lady to me the other day. "I speak with feeling on the subject for I, myself, am the victim of three devoted daughters, who, in their desire to do their duty to me, almost boss me to death.

"Of course, I know that their tyranny is inspired by their affection and their sincere desire for my well-being, and I try to bear it with humility and fortitude. But, believe me, there are few more painful experiences in life than being chicken-pecked, and so there are times when I actually envy the mothers who have ungrateful children that let them alone, and who go their ways and let her go hers.

"Now I am neither infirm in body, nor senile in mind, and I still possess all of my faculties. I am quite as capable of getting around and attending to my own affairs and making my own decisions as I was in the days when my daughters were children and had to look to mother for everything and obey her. But the shoe is on the other foot now and it's mother who has to mind and do as she is told to.

"And I don't like it. I don't like being treated like a moron who hasn't intelligence enough to take care of herself, and who has to have some kindly, wise person direct her every movement.

"Positively there are times when I have to bite my tongue nearly off to keep from screaming with exasperation when I hear my affectionate mentors say for the millionth time: 'Mother, hadn't you better move out of that draft?' 'Mother, don't you think you had better go and lie down and take a little nap now?' 'Mother, don't you think you are drinking your coffee too strong?' 'Mother, do you really think you should eat steak for dinner?'

"My children do not realize that they are offering me a gratuitous insult by suggesting that I have grown so feeble-minded that I do not know whether I am hot or cold, or what food agrees with me, and so I swallow my resentment and smile sweetly to hide my rage. But let me tell you it takes the patience of Job to enable the old to endure the incessant nagging of the young.

"I am bored to extinction because I have nothing to do. For 40 years I was a breathlessly busy woman. Running a house. Rearing a family. Managing servants. Cooking. Sewing. Nursing. Managing. Contriving ways and means. Launching daughters in society. Getting them married. All of the myriad responsibilities and activities that fill a competent wife and mother's hands. Now I have nothing to do. Nothing to plan for. Nothing to look forward to. Nothing to do but to kill time.

"When my husband died, my dear, good dutiful daughters snatched me out of my old home while I was still so grief bewildered that I did not realize what they were doing. 'Mother has worked long enough. Mother must rest and take things easy the balance of her life. Mother must let us cherish and comfort her and take care of her now and repay her for her devotion to us,' they said.

"So they sold the old house to which I had gone as a bride and where all the happy years of my married life had been spent, and sold the old furniture that was not furniture to me, but memories, and they took me away from my old friends and associations to the cities in which they lived and turned me into a perpetual guest, which is the most strenuous and wearing career on earth.

"For I have no home. I am just a visitor and must be always on my P's and Q's not to interfere with any of the arrangements of the house in which I am staying. I must make a constant effort to be agreeable and pleasant, as that is the only way in which I can pay my board. I have no friends—only acquaintances among people of my daughter's age, and when I am asked out to dinner or lunch it is only a courtesy to Mary's or Jane's or Sally's mother, not because I am personally desired.

"My daughters are filled with self-righteous satisfaction and they think how good they are to mother. They pat themselves on the back when they reflect that mother has not been left lonely in the old home where she would have to worry with incompetent help and have the burden of housekeeping on her. I haven't the heart to tell them how much happier I would have been if they would have only left me in my old home, among my old friends, with plenty of work to do.

"Worse still, my devoted daughters have not left me a vestige of personal independence. I have to give an account for my every act, and before I can do the simplest thing a family council has to sit upon it. Last summer I had planned to go to Europe with a friend and all our arrangements had been made, but at the last minute I had to give it up because my daughters were so worried for fear 'something would happen' to me! I suppose they felt they couldn't trust me not to fall over the rail of the boat, or that I would get lost in Paris or London.

"I can't get a letter without their wanting to know who it is from. I can't make a visit without telling where I am going and just when I'll be home. I am not even permitted to go down town by myself. I have to wait until one of the girls finds it convenient to go with me, and decency forbids me telling them that I want to go alone; that I am fed up on daughters, and desire to go out by myself and do the things that I want to do, instead of the things that they think I should do.

"And my daughters pick out my clothes for me. It's been years since I had the privilege of consulting my own preference in the matter of hats and dresses. I always exemplify in my appearance the taste of the particular daughter with whom I am staying, and, little as they suspect it, I consider myself a martyr because I have to wear the blacks and grays that my girls pick out for me instead of the cheerful blues and pinks for which I yearn.

MY SON'S SWEETHEARTS

By Ida McGlone Gibson

"When I got home from the attorney's office, Dad called me over to his house and told me Jerry's version of the fight. Jerry came later, and between them they made me decide to tell Jerry today that I would marry him. I did not rest much last night, Wynne. About 12 o'clock I dropped asleep, however, and in a dream I saw you in a blue car coming toward me at a terrific pace, calling, 'I'm coming, Natlee, wait for me.'"

"That is what I did say, Natlee, and now that I am here, will you marry me this morning? You can go with me to get the license and then we will rout the preacher out of bed to marry us. After that, we will go back to the hotel and have breakfast."

"Wynne!" It was a timid little voice that spoke his name. "Don't you think it would be very cruel to rout the minister out of bed, and, besides, the place where you get the license would probably not be open until 9 o'clock. Let's get our breakfast now. I am very hungry."

"So am I, but I did not know it. Someone always has to suggest things to me. Miss Jones, may I have the pleasure of breakfasting with you for the last time?"

Natlee raised a startled face to him. "The next time we breakfast together, Natlee, you will be Mrs. Philip Wynne Tracy, sweetheart."

It seemed only a few minutes afterward to Natlee Jones that, breakfast over, license obtained, she was standing in the little living-room of the parsonage, and the minister was saying: "I pronounce you husband and wife."

"Mum, Mum, I've got her! I've got her! Isn't she a beauty?"

It was not necessary to explain to Anne Tracy what had happened. "Come up here immediately, you two. I want to kiss my daughter," she called from the window.

"Can't do it now, Mumsie. We're going over to beard Natlee's father. If we're not shot full of holes, we'll come back for a day."

Anne Tracy sat motionless as they whirled down the street and out of sight. Finally she turned from the window and looked about the room. It was already lonely. From now on it would probably grow lonelier each day. She tried to peer into the future; to find some hope that she might cling to.

She seated herself on the old familiar chaise longe. The unbidden tears ran down her cheeks. This was a mother's destiny. She it was who had suffered and battled and prayed that this son would grow to be a man worthier than his father—yet before she had finished her work another woman had taken him, and they would carry on together, while she was alone.

Another woman was taking up the duties of wife and mother; a new generation was beginning. She turned her head from the light of the window; the tears were coming faster.

There was a knock at the door. Nonnie came in. She, too, had seen Philip and Natlee, and needed no explanation of Mrs. Tracy's tear-stained face.

"Don't you worry, Mrs. Tracy. Things aren't ever so bad as they seme," and, with a smile, she handed her a card.

Quicksands of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

A New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

IT was only for a fleeting instant that Dicky's glance crossed mine through the window of Philip Veritzen's luxurious limousine. Then, with no slightest movement to show that he had recognized me, he turned away. Anyone would have been justified in believing that he had not seen me. But I knew better. I had caught his eyes, the startled repulsion with which one unexpectedly encounters some detested object in one's path.

I sank back against the cushions of the car with my fingers clenched into my palms, every move focused upon the determination to betray no hint of the fury which was shaking me. What right had Dicky to look at me like that because I was taking a drive with Philip Veritzen when he himself was frequently with Edith Fairfax and, I did not doubt, dining, driving and dancing with her also.

"Didn't your husband just pass us?"

Philip Veritzen's voice, a little too careless, softly phrased the inquiry. With a mighty effort I caught back my self-control, making the mental note the while that the great producer must have opened his eyes as soon as I stopped scrutinizing his face. His remark about being fatigued and needing rest had been only a ruse to watch the expression of my face when I thought myself unobserved.

Suddenly a surge of distaste went over me. Underneath the romantic glamour surrounding the great man, and the very real fascination of his personality, I thought I glimpsed vanity and ruthlessness. My reason told me that while my impression might very well be true, my reaction against him at this particular instant was not a result of any words of his, but of my own violent emotion at the sight of Dicky's contemptuous face through the window of the limousine.

Usually I am able to control my voice, but I was horrified to hear a distinct tremor in it when I answered my companion's question.

"Yes, I think it was he."

Out of the corner of my eye, I saw Mr. Veritzen's head turn away from the traffic to which he had given momentary attention, and knew that his eyes were resting intently upon me.

"I am afraid you are upset about something," he said at last, his resonant voice softened to a velvety sympathetic murmur. "Please believe I wouldn't cause you any embarrassment or annoyance for worlds. I may be mistaken, but—am I wrong in my impression that your husband might not approve of this eminently matter-of-fact drive of ours?"

He was either diabolically clever or my overwrought nerves read a meaning into his little speech which was not there. But as vividly as if he had spoken the words, there came to me the impression that he considered Dicky a narrow-minded specimen of the jealous male, who was capable of deliberately misunderstanding a commonplace courtesy. The implication was plain also, or so it seemed to me, that my worrying over Dicky's viewpoint appeared extremely archaic as well as amusing also to the great dramatic producer.

The air in the limousine seemed suddenly stifling, although one of the windows was down. I was horribly afraid that my nervous anger would get the better of me, and above everything else I was determined that Mr. Veritzen should not guess my emotion. With an effort worthy of a better cause, I pulled myself together, and answered him with light casualness.

"Oh! I am sure Dicky never thinks enough about it to know whether he approves or not," I said with a laugh. "I suppose your inference is drawn from the fact that he did not recognize us just now, but if you knew him as I do you would realize that he probably did not see us at all. When he is thinking out the details of some new illustration he goes around seeing nothing and with his face screwed up into the most horrible faces. It is a wonder to me that he isn't run over. He is the most absent-minded person."

NO "DEFIANCE" OF LEGION IN PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 23—(AP.)—American Legion headquarters showed its usual activity this morning despite the action of the Communist organ L'Humanite in urging "defiance" of the legion convention because of the Sacco-Vanzetti executions.

Legion officials were as busy as they have been since the headquarters was opened in "American House," preparing for the convention parade, while a half dozen policemen, discreetly stationed across the way, scrutinized all callers.

The program for a tour of Europe by 250 chosen legionnaires is approaching completion. The tour will start September 25, and its general itinerary will be: Nice, Monte Carlo, Genoa, Rome, Lucerne, Strasbourg, Metz, Brussels and London.

The members will leave from Rheims where, on September 25, one of the greatest celebrations the bombarded city ever saw will be held in honor of the legion.

sharply to the pair of them. They were always promising to help her with the dishes or the bed-making in return for work she did for them.

Mabel opened her big eyes and shrugged one shoulder.

"I'm perfectly willing to do them—but I won't unless Millie helps," said she pertly. "There's no reason why I should—Beau pays for any trouble I make in this house."

Sally's scarlet mouth made a round O of astonishment. "Beau pays for any trouble you make here, Mabel!" she repeated. "Why, what are you talking about? Not that you're any trouble. We love to have you any time you can come—but don't get it into your head that Beau pays your board here, or anything like that. Why, Beau doesn't even pay his own board—"

"Sally! Sally! I wouldn't talk about my brother if I were you!" Mrs. Jerome glanced up at her daughter with strong disapproval, making her plump face almost haggard for an instant.

"Well, Mabel ought to know the truth about him. She's going to live with him all her life!" declared Sally. "It isn't fair to let her think that he pays her bills when he doesn't! He shouldn't be allowed to get away with such tales—"

She laid the bill for his clothes down before her mother on the cloth. "And you! You've been lending him your money again!" she said hotly. "Look at that! Spending almost $50 on those silly-looking clothes in there, when you haven't even paid your doctor bill for last month. When you need a new bathrobe and a lot of things—and then he can pay $4 for one necktie, and $3 for another, and—"

"But I didn't lend him any money," Mrs. Jerome broke in mildly. "I haven't had my July check from your father yet. I haven't any money."

And then, all at once, her face seemed to crumple up like a dried rose-petal, and she began to cry.

"You talk to me just like your Aunt Emily does!" she sobbed. "You're getting to be just like her—just like her. And I can't stand it—I won't be scolded. I've got enough to bear as it is!"

Sally rushed to her and put her arms around her and begged her forgiveness. "Darling, you know I didn't mean to be nasty!" she whispered, while Millie and Mabel, moved to sudden action, began to carry out the dishes. "But it makes me wild when I haven't got enough money to keep you comfortable, and then Beau spends all of his on his own selfish self—I just burn up when I think of it!"

After a while Mrs. Jerome dried her tears and had a fresh pot of coffee.

"It doesn't matter, Sally," she said with a gulp. "I've had so many bangs and disappointments in life that it takes a lot to really down me."

She went on reviewing her wrongs. It seemed hard, she said, that they should have such a dreadful time of it all because of their father—because he ran away and left her to face the music alone.

"To think of my girls having to work in offices all day with a lot of tobacco-smoking men!" she sighed. "Especially Millie—Millie, poor little thing, is so attractive to men—"

Heaven alone knew what went on in offices all day long, she declared. She never had a minute's peace while her girls were away at work in them.

"You don't need to worry about us!" said Sally. "Not right now, anyway. But we've all got to worry about Beau. . . . Where's he getting all this money lately—this money that he's spending on guitars and haberdashery, eh?"

Startled, Millie came in from the kitchen, dish-towel in hand.

"By jinks, that's right!" she cried. "He has had a lot lately, hasn't he? And do you know, he let me have the money to buy that blue flannel dress with! Forty-five dollars!"

CHAPTER XII.

SALLY'S troubled eyes went from Millie's blank little face to her mother's.

"You don't suppose," she said very slowly, "that Beau—you don't think that Beau—" And then she stepped just there. She couldn't put into words the thought that was written in her brain at that moment.

Had Beau come by that extra money honestly? . . . The thought frightened Sally, and she was ashamed of it, too. But she could not put it from her.

For young Beau worked all day in a bank downtown.

All day he was surrounded by money and by talk about money. All day long he handled money—counting it, strapping it into bundles with rubber bands, carrying it from one bank to another. All day long it was in his hands—in the hands of Beau, who was constantly in need of it, no matter how much he earned or how recently he had been paid!

"Maybe he borrowed it from someone." It was Mrs. Jerome who spoke, and, looking at her, Sally saw her own terror mirrored in her face.

"He must have," Sally answered her, and tried to smile. "He has lots of friends."

And so he had, she reflected. But not the kind of friends who could lend him a hundred dollars or so to squander on musical instruments and four-in-hands.

Beau's friends were like himself—poor and young and filled with hunger for the flashy things of life. For the things that mistaken Youth yearns for—low-slung automobiles, full liquor flasks, nights of music and uproar, and lesser things like silk neckties and socks to match.

That night Sally could not sleep.

She lay awake for hours in the bed she had made up on the hammock couch, staring up at the star-powdered sky, waiting for the return of Beau and Mabel from their Saturday night pleasure hunt.

"I've just got to have this out with Beau tonight," she told herself over and over. "I've just got to find out where Beau got the money for Millie's dress. I've just got to!"

But when she finally heard the sound of his latchkey in the door of the flat, she changed her mind.

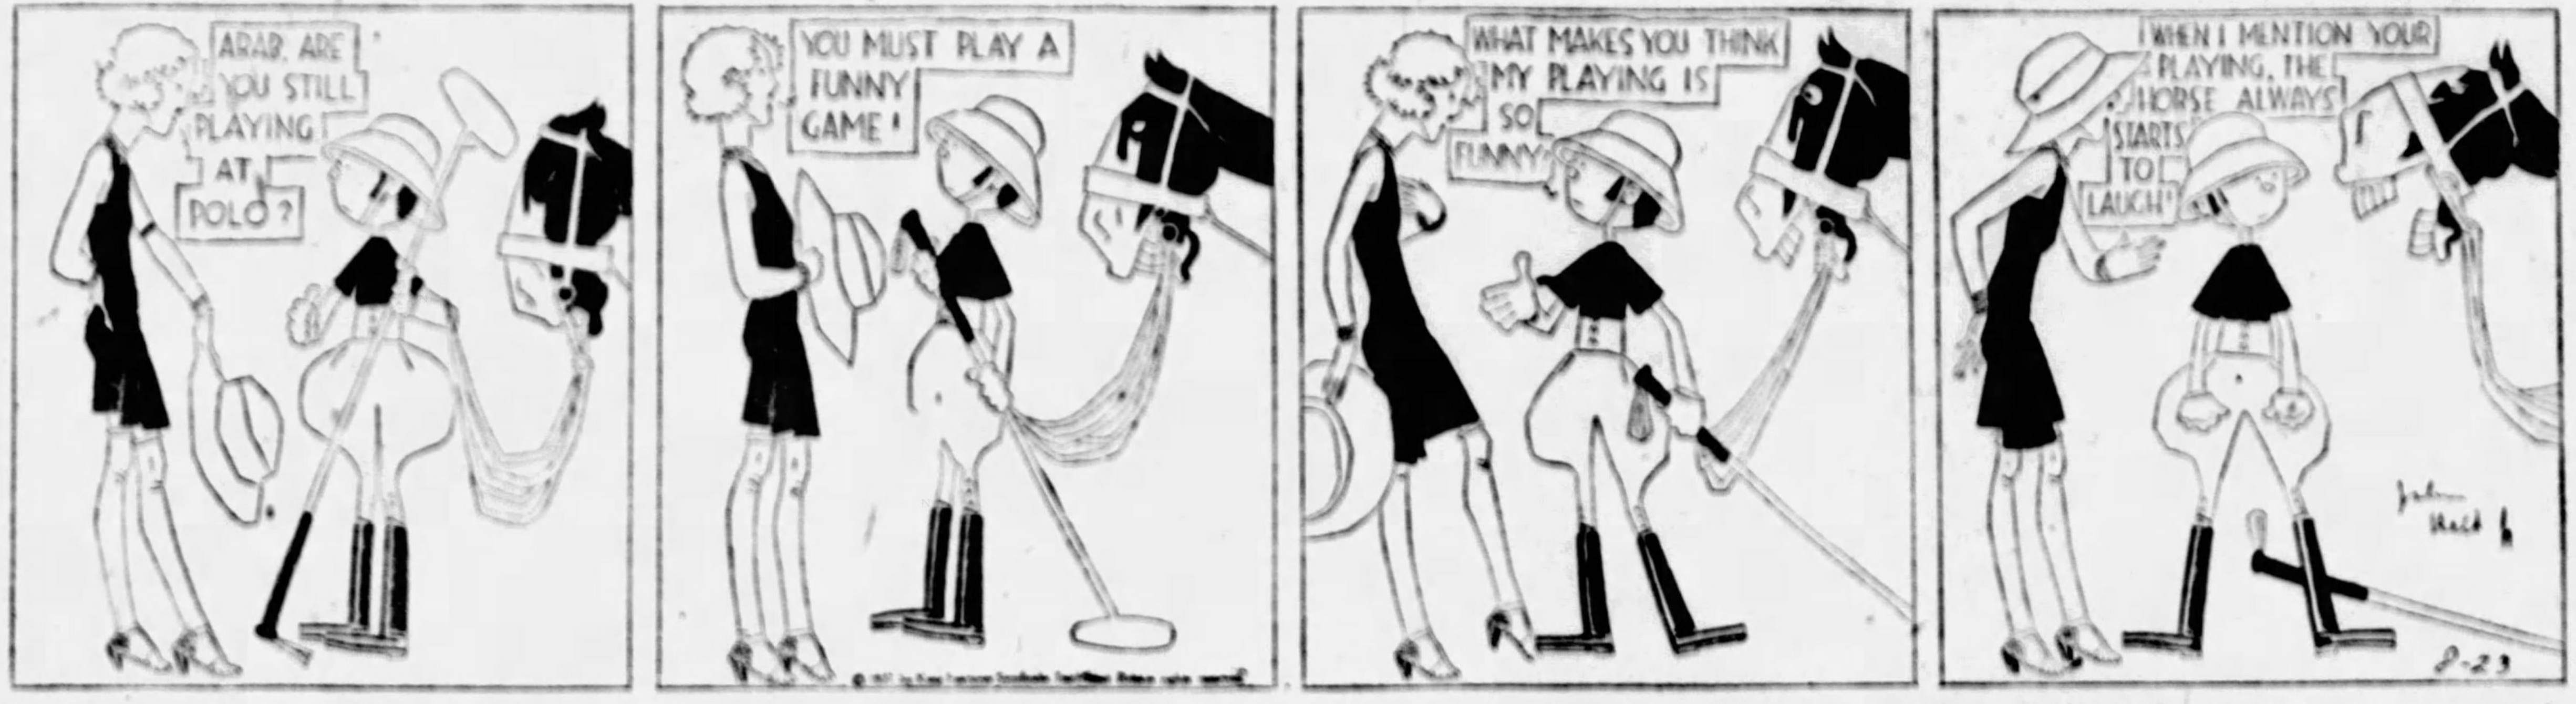
Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.



ARAB, ARE YOU STILL PLAYING AT POLO?
YOU MUST PLAY A FUNNY GAME!
WHAT MAKES YOU THINK MY PLAYING IS SO FUNNY?
WHEN I MENTION YOUR PLAYING, THE HORSE ALWAYS STARTS TO LAUGH!
John Held Jr

"HONestly, my dear, I'm on the VERGE of colLAPSE at this point because Arab is at this POlo business again—can you BEAR it? I mean that odd youth SIMply VANquishes me, no less, because he has the MOST perverted IDEAS. I mean you would honestly think that anyone who cannot even RIDE without being BOUNCED OFF in all diRECtions would be the LAST person in the WORLD to conceive a conSUMing PASsion to play POlo, my dear, but that is practically ALways the WAY with the ARab—I mean if it is something he cannot POSsibly DO, he is always FRANtically TRYing, because I mean he is the same WAY about KISSING, f'r instance. He KNOWS I simply NEver allow boys to get FRESH and yet he keeps PEStering the LIFE out of me to let him KISS me—can you BEAR it, my dear? Well, ANYways, it was honestly too perfectly SCREAMing when I enCOUNTERED him this MORNing, sort of GIRdered for the FRAY because there he WAS, my dear, in this NATty little POlo outfit leading this LARGE-sized EQuinox and, my dear, I was ACtually TOO imPRESSED because I mean for the FIRST time in my life I REALized what is meant by a HORSE LAUGH, my dear, because I mean this POlo pony that ARab was leading was simply conVULSED—can you BEAR it, my dear?"

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

NERVOUS PARALYSIS AND SOME CAUSES.

AN Ohio lady asks for an article on "nervous paralysis." I am not quite sure just what it is she wants. There are many forms of paralysis, all of them involving one or more nerves.

Suppose we review briefly our knowledge of the nervous system. There will still be space to speak of some forms of paralysis.

Chief of the organs of the body and commander of the nervous system is the brain. Next to this in importance is the spinal cord, the great nervous structure, enclosed in and running the full length of the backbone.

DR. COPELAND

From the brain are given off 12 pairs of nerves, called the "cranial nerves." Some of these are called "special nerves," because they govern the special senses. There are the olfactory or smelling nerve; the optic or seeing nerve; the auditory or hearing nerve, etc.

Then there are 31 pairs of nerves branching out of the spinal cord. These are called "spinal nerves." Through this arrangement every part of the body is reached. Each one of these many nerves is like a telephone or telegraph system. Messages can be sent from the body to the spinal cord and from the cord to the remote portions of the anatomy.

For instance, in its various branches and subdivisions there is a nerve running from the spinal cord to the index finger. This nerve has a double function. One is devoted to sensation; if a flaming match touches the finger a message is sent to the central office. From this center a message is sent back ordering the finger to move away from the heat. The first function is called sensory; the other motor.

Of course there are many other details involved in the construction and functions of the nervous system. But this is enough information for our present purpose.

Paralysis of a nerve may do two things—it may destroy both sensation and motion in a part of the body; or the paralysis may destroy the motor root of the nerve, and motion alone will be lost; or the sensory root alone may be destroyed, with loss of sensation in a part as a consequence.

So you see we may meet motor paralysis, or sensory paralysis, or, if the whole nerve is cut across or pressed upon, both motor and sensory paralysis may result. That is why the term "nervous paralysis," used by the Ohio lady who wrote me, is too indefinite to describe what she has in mind.

Following an automobile accident there may be such an injury to the spine as to produce bleeding in the cord. The blood clot may press upon the base of one of the spinal nerves. In consequence there will be paralysis, probably of motion and sensation both, in the region supplied by the nerve or nerves involved.

A man past middle life may have a "stroke of apoplexy." That is, there is bleeding in some portion of the brain. The nerve centers of so many nerves are involved that one whole side of the body may be paralyzed.

There may be a fall, followed by bleeding in the course of a nerve, say the facial nerve. In consequence the side of the face supplied by this nerve loses all muscular movement. There is entire loss of expression on the one side of the face. The victim may laugh and draw up his face on the sound side, but on the other side it remains perfectly blank.

The outcome of paralysis depends on its cause. The size of the hemorrhage, the nature of the tumor pressing on the nerve, and the state of the general health, all have a bearing on the outcome.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

A.—No. If you take care of your general health you will not be susceptible to colds.

VON ELM FACES QUALIFYING CRISIS

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS
TUESDAY, AUGUST 23, 1927

THROUGH the SPORT LENS

by HAVEY BOYLE

CONSIDERABLE space of late has been given to the tennis whirl. Newspapers all over the country devote much white paper to producing likenesses of the game's notables preparing for an international event scheduled soon in the East. It is called the Davis Cup competition. Do newspapers answer a demand or do they in playing up tennis actually cause a demand by building up interest? It may be of some interest to know that at Forest Hills, where some of the country's greatest stars were performing, just 500 persons turned out to see the contests.

Havey J. Boyle.

IN this competition four of America's ranking ten tennis players performed, including the game's best known exponent, Bill Tilden, and yet only 500 persons found the show attractive.

Imagine the crowd which would turn out to see the four best baseball players; the four best boxers or the four best football players! It is our private opinion publicly expressed that the newspapers give altogether too much space to the tennis racket, so to speak.

THAT doesn't go for Miss Wills, of course. Insofar as we are concerned newspapers can publish a different pose of her every day, or the same pose, and for that we will purchase the paper, but as for studying quite regularly the contour and charms of the male players who adorn the sport pages so often, count us out.

For quite a while now we have been hearing of the Davis Cup trials and soon the great event will come off. At that time about 10,000 persons will be on hand. A like number will turn out on a Saturday afternoon to see the Philadelphia Quakers, designated as the Married Men, play the Brooklyn Dodgers, known as the Single Men of the league.

LAST year we had occasion to see a big international tennis event at the Merion Cricket Club in Philadelphia. The stands were packed—and the attendance was reported to be about 10,000. We didn't enjoy the event much because we felt out of place inasmuch as the business suit we were wearing at the time was almost a week old. Through the crowds dowagers puffed strenuously at strong cigarets when they were not affecting a haughty glance through lorgnettes at "inferior persons" who passed along. The air was a little stifling, and we would have given a couple of dollars to hear someone say "ain't" just to be real naughty. As a matter of fact, the listener did get quite a kick out of the pedantic "Aren't I?" expression, when he had learned from an earthy old pedagogue that "Ain't I" isn't so bad after all—far better than the clumsy "Aren't I," which is nursed and fondled and actually dragged in by the neck by the tennis boys and girls.

HOW many of you have read the detailed account of any tennis match? Or do you mostly look at the headline: "Tilden Wins," or "Tilden Loses," and fail even to take in the score?

If tennis were readable then the small attendance at the big events would offer no hint that the game is over-played by the press of the nation, but it appears that only a few are spectators and less than that number bother to read about the game.

Sometimes baseball games draw only 1,500, but these games will attract a newspaper audience of 100,000 or more. That is because baseball is readable. Many are the fans who see only four or five games a season, yet who read avidly every word written about their game. That is how baseball helps the newspapers.

BARNEY DREYFUSS, home from a week's stay in the East with his ball club, was in high good humor today over the team's prospects. "Past troubles are being forgotten," said the local owner, "and the boys are confident they still have a great chance for the pennant. Certain phases of the remainder of the race favor the Pirates. The Cubs, for instance, have far more games with the first division clubs than we have. Our worst is nearly over, while the Cubs have still to face a strenuous schedule. We have five more games to play with the Cubs. Only one of these is scheduled on our home grounds, yet even this is not so bad as it sounds, because the Pirates have played better ball in Chicago than against the Cubs at Forbes Field.

"In one short week the Cub lead was cut three games and a half and the season has six more weeks to go. Many things can happen in that time in spite of the lead held by the Cubs now."

MR. DREYFUSS said the Cuyler incident was closed and reported that already there is a better feeling between the Pirate manager, Bush, and Cuyler. At no time, Mr. Dreyfuss said, was Bush sore at Cuyler and although misunderstanding cropped up after

Pirates Jubilant Over Gain on Leading Cubs

BUCS PLAY AT NEW HAVEN TODAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 23.—The cultured ways of this educational town charmed the Pirates today as they spent some enjoyable hours in advance of an exhibition game with the local Eastern League club, but it is not straying from the facts to state that the Bushwhackers seemed to get a bigger "kick" out of the performance of the Braves yesterday when the Cubs were handed another big jolt.

No pencils were required by the staff of cross-word puzzle experts on the Pittsburgh club to figure that the Bears are only two and one-half games ahead of the Pittsburghers. Less than one week ago the Bruins were enjoying a six-game advantage.

But even as the Pirate players enjoyed their feelings relative to the slumping of the Cubs a couple of tough guys popped around the corner to disturb the pleasant reveries. The hard gents did not appear in person, but they were present in the percentage tables in rolls of the Cardinals and Giants.

FOUR TEAMS IN RACE.

Perhaps you fans are aware today of the fact that the National League race has developed into a sweet four-team sweepstakes with only five games separating the fourth-place Giants from the first-place Cubs. The Cardinals are only one game beneath the Pirates and the Giants are just one and one-half games removed from the Redbirds.

Shortly after they partake of their evening meal tonight the Pirates will board a fast train for Boston. On tomorrow afternoon the fur is expected to fly, two battles between the Freebooters and Braves being on the card. Single games will be played Friday and Saturday.

The Buccos realize they face a

TAD'S TIDBITS

McIntosh Says Walker Is Bust as Champion

MR. HUGH McINTOSH, the big theatrical man of Australia, saw Mickey Walker stop Tommy Milligan in London recently, and tabs Mickey as an awful thing.

McIntosh, if you have forgotten, is the man who put on the Tommy Burns-Jack Johnson fight for the world's heavyweight championship about 1908 at Sydney, Australia. McInosh is the man who at that time STARTLED the boxing world with the enormous purse of $35,000 for the fight. Burns was guaranteed $30,000, and Johnson $5,000.

McIntosh cabled the Sydney Referee a story of the Walker-Milligan fight. It was not the financial success we were led to believe. Mr. McIntosh wrote:

"Accompanied by the Marquis of Clydesdale, Sir Milson Nees, and Leon Gordon, I saw the Milligan-Walker fight at Olympia on Thursday for the middleweight championship of the world. It proved to be a most exciting contest.

"Milligan tore into the champion with ferocity, forcing the fight and landing with both hands continuously, though his punches were lacking in force. Milligan was leading on points for the first six rounds. However, Walker, covering up, and, fighting back, never looked a loser. It was apparent that the Milligan punches were weak.

"The end came in the tenth round with a crashing right-hand blow which knocked Milligan on his back. He rolled over in desperate efforts to rise, with blood streaming from his mouth and nose. But all was over. The gallant Scottish fighter had met his fate, and finally decided his career as a possible champion.

"He is a much better boxer than Walker, but punches weakly.

"Walker is the worst middleweight champion I have seen. It is impossible to compare him with Fitzsimmons, Ketchel, Papke, Darcy or McGoorty, and any one of these would have stopped him in a round.

"Tiger Payne would easily defeat Walker, and by the knockout route in short time.

"He is a slow, punishing fighter, with no real knockout punch. He simply hammered Milligan to pieces before the final knockout.

"It was the most dramatic and stirring fight seen in London for 20 years. The house was a poor one, and Mr. Charles Cochran must have lost a large sum of maney over the affair. The vast Olympia was barely one-third full. Nearly all the dearer seats were empty. The general arrangements were excellent, and reflected great credit on the management."

NOW, YOU TELL ONE

TOM MULVEY, here on a visit, was talking the other night about the time Billy Gibson took Benny Leonard to 'Frisco to box Willie Ritchie.

"It was a great four-round bout," said Tom, "and Ritchie closed Leonard's left eye in the third round, much to the surprise of everyone. Even though he had but one eye to peek with Leonard made a hot finish of it in the fourth and had the crowd howling. Of course, Ritchie won. There wasn't any question of that.

"After the fight that night, Jim Griffin had a big fish chowder party put on at the Indoor Yacht Club. You know, the Indoor Yacht Club had the second floor of the building on Powell and Eddy streets, and Jim gave this party to Gibson. There was quite a gang there that night, and just as everyone was seated at the table Griffin looked down the line near the end, and, spotting Leonard with his black and blue glim, yelled, 'Boys, there are 55 of us here tonight at this feed, and the only man in the house with a black eye is Benny Leonard, the lightweight champion of the world.'"

MANY GOLF "GREATS" TRAIL IN AMATEUR

BULLETIN.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 23.—Rudy Knepper set the pace for the early starters for the first nine holes of the second 18-hole qualifying round in the national amateur golf tournament here today with a neat 37. Chick Evans was next best with 38. Evans shot a 75 yesterday and should he finish strong he might win the medal. George Voight made the first three holes in perfect figures. Allen Labatt, local star and the first player to finish, took 10 strokes off his yesterday's score with a 76. Scoring generally is high.

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sports Editor.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 23.—"I only ask one thing of these sharpshooters. Let them lay off that 72 of mine. They can have the rest of the tournament. They know what it is to be famous, I don't. All I ask is my little taste of fame over night. After that, I can pass on out without a regret."

That was 19-year-old Phillips Finlay yesterday. Just a boy with a typical boy's prayer for the thing that he wanted most. So he stood just off the eighteenth green and silently exhorted each incoming golfer to leave, untouched and inviolate, his leadership of the first day's qualifying round of the national amateur golf championship.

Wherefore, he hung breathless by his mental finger nails over the great abyss, fear, as he watched Chick Evans, Watts Gunn, Rudy Knepper, Maurice McCarthy, Max Marston and other good ones come home, distanced, and when, suddenly, fate snatched the prize from him, it came from a quarter least expected. Fate's instrument happened to be Finlay's very good friend.

But today, neither Eugene V. Homans, Englewood, N. J., with a 71, nor Phillips Finlay, Shinnecock Hills, Conn., with a 72, have the slightest quarrel with fate, for they were leading Bobby Jones, George Von Elm, and one of the finest fields ever assembled into the final days of a championship qualifying round.

CERTAIN TO QUALIFY.

They may not win the medal, this adolescent pair that met in the final round of the eastern interscholastic championship, with Finlay winning, this pair that has preferred to go off by itself for a quiet 18 holes, yet has been forced, by the exigencies of tournament play, into close personal contact from time to time. No, it may be that both will be all but forgotten by tonight, but whatever

BUGS BAER Says:

WHOLE world is waiting for Hank Ford's new road cruiser. Henry went into executive session 12 months ago with a blueprint and a monkey wrench.

Last month he threw away the blue print and sent out for another wrench.

His last car was good enough for transportation. But not so good for flirtation.

He made ten million of them. When his ten millionth car was completed, Hank gazed at it in admiration, wiped the percentage off his brow, and said:

"That's enough of those things. Now I'll go into the automobile business."

Nobody knows anything about his newest boulevard chugger. Nobody knew much about his old one.

All we know is that it got you there and thought so much of its own efforts that it used to applaud itself with its fenders.

The shock absorbers were on the axles instead of under the seats. And the seats did not fold.

Hank was the first manufacturer to discover that it was more economical to fold the driver than to fold the seats.

The result was that you drove with your chin resting on your knees and your knees resting on the windshield. This made for the maximum of congestion with the minimum of space.

Having driven aloft with Lindbergh last week, there is a chance of Henry incorporating the non-stop idea into traffic jams. The fenders on the new Ford may open up like wings and enable the Ford to sail over busy streets with traffic cops slapping at them like skeeters.

We are waiting eagerly for news from the sick chambers of the Detroit factory. Any minute now, the mechanical doctor will come to the freight door and say:

"It's seven pounds of tin. Papa and car are doing well."

It will be impossible to improve on the efficiency of the old car. There are ten million of them in existence. And there always be.

All of them look alike, for Henry never believed in slowing them up with improvements.

Its second-hand value was as good as its first. It defied wind, storm and frost and operated independently of its tool chest.

The only reason we can figure why Henry is making a more beautiful car is that he is catering to the younger generation. We have heard that he has finally succumbed to popular demand and is building a kiss-or-walk car.

Well, Henry knows best. But, having sold ten million of them, we figure that the Ford should be past the experimental stage.

All About Log-Rolling

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

COMES to hand an announcement enclosed in a gaudy red-lettered large envelope, with the request that we give it proper publicity and comment on same. It tells the wide, wide world that the Tenth World's Championship Log Rolling Tournament will be held at the Duluth Boat Club, Duluth, August 27-28, under the auspices of William P. Hart, promoter, and his World's Championship Log Rolling Tournament Association, which is devoted to the development of log-rolling as a major sport. The world's best log-rollers will compete, according to the announcement, and the contests each day will get under way at 1:30 p. m. Further, the announcement reads, this is a clean sport, with plenty of action, and the roads leading to Duluth are good.

There is nothing we know less about than the good and honorable sport of log-rolling, and, in the absence of such information and knowledge, we are willing to quote from the announcement, which says:

"The first world contest was held at Omaha during the lumbermen's convention in 1908 and was witnessed by a crowd of 36,000 people (there probably were some animals there, too, and perhaps a few logs), who remained in the rain for hours watching the contest. The second, third and fourth contests were held at Ashland, Wis., the fifth, sixth and seventh at Eau Claire, Wis., and the eighth and ninth at Washburn, Wis., in Bodin's Brownstone Bowl.

"Log-rolling has rapidly developed as a major sport. The interest in it has spread like wildfire to all parts of the United States and Canada and people come from all parts of the North American continent to witness the event. In 1925-26, 40,000 came to Washburn to witness the biggest world's contest ever held. Attractive purses and prizes are being offered, with gold and silver cups emblematic of the world's championship. The entry list is large."

If you are a good log-roller, or willing to become one, just send your entry to Mr. Hart at Eau Claire, Wis.

Wonder where we've been all our life that we haven't known about all of this before. We've heard a lot about hog-calling contests and how they're run off, but this is the first time anyone has given us the lowdown on log-rolling, and we're certainly more than pleased to give Mr. Hart's contests a little space. As little as possible, in fact.

And we hope, now that he has the racket built up, he is successful in keeping Tex Rickard and C. and C. Pyle off his reservation.

SEND in your Dempsey-Tunney letters for next Sunday's issue. A flock of them already have been received from readers in response to a call for opinions on the probable outcome of the return battle between the present and former heavyweight champions. As many of these letters as possible will be published, along with a complete tabulation of opinions received up to Friday night. Some interesting views are presented in the missives—and sentiment is about evenly divided as to the fans' choices.

Watch for this open forum on the fight in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph and get into the game yourself.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 23.—Three running defeats at the hands of the Braves is more than a suggestion that the Cubs are in the act of cracking. Are they about to emulate the Pirates of 1921? So far on the present Eastern jaunt the Bears have been routed five times and they have only two victories to show. They are slated to battle the tribe again today, and any flag-contender will bear evidence that Bancroft's Indians are a wild bunch when they throw themselves at the better-class teams.

AFTER the Braves had trimmed the Pirates three times in a row at Forbes Field, they hit the trail for Chicago, where they dropped a whole series. More than one Pirate enthusiast looked upon the actions of the Boston boys with some little suspicion. There was an undercurrent of feeling to the effect that the Braves would "bear down" harder against the Pirates on account of the Smith-Bancroft episode. But it is to the credit of the lowly but spunky Braves that they are playing no favorites. They don't seem to care what flag contender they lick, so long as it is a pennant hunter. Against the Quakers they frequently resemble a twilight league team.

"IT'S everybody for himself from here on in," quoth Bill Terry, of the Giants, after the New Yorkers had hung a double defeat on the Bers. The men of McGraw are showing a fine morale, by the way. Only five games away from the top, they feel they have a very good chance to cop.

ON THE other hand, the Giants will stage most of their remaining games on hostile grounds. But you can never tell about this phase of play. The Pirates reeled off seven games of their 11 straight while on the road.

THE Pirates, however, may be ready for a fruitful stay at home. The Bushwhackers have not been exceptionally successful in Oakland, but with all the stars rounding into form, the team may hit a good stride as they take on the eastern foemen in September. The Cubs and Cardinals also play most of their remaining battles at home, but the Pirates are thought to have an advantage in that they do not have many games left with these two sectional foes. The Cubs and Cardinals, on the other hand, have a flock of battles with each other on the latter part of the schedule.

LEGION POST TO STAGE TRACK MEET ON SEPT. 10

Entry blanks are being distributed for the track and field meet to be held at Edgar Thomson Park, Braddock, Saturday, September 10, under the auspices of American Legion Post No. 90 of Braddock. The program will include the 100, 220, 440, 880-yard, mile run, half-mile walk, four-fifths mile relay, pole vault, high and broad jump and shotput.

70,000 Vets Plan Tribute

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The American Legion, Department of Illinois, is anxious to give Gene Tunney a record-breaking welcome, State Commander Ferre C. Watkins wrote the champion today.

"Pick the time and place," Watkins wrote, "when the 70,000 legionnaires in Illinois can show the pride we have in the fact that you belong to us, wore the same uniform and have a service record that pleases all of us."

The marine post of Chicago, with 400 former comrades of Tunney, would have charge of the official veterans' reception to the champion if he accepts the invitation.

"We are anxious, here in Chicago," wrote Watkins, "with nearly 30,000 members of the American Legion, for you to set aside an evening before the fight so we can formally tender you an official reception. We are anxious to have you come to Chicago feeling that the heart of the Legion welcomes you, and that its members want a chance to show you that the comradeship of 10 years ago is still kept alive."

JACK BEGINS TRAINING.

Manassa, Colorado's pride—the strapping, slashing former heavyweight champion of the world, Jack Dempsey—boxed gingerly with his shadow and punched vigorously at unoffending punching bags today at his Lincoln Fields training camp. It was his first local gesture of preparation for his Soldier Field Stadium engagement with Gene Tunney September 22.

The race course at Lincoln Fields, Dempsey said, makes one of the best training camps he ever has seen. We visited every nook and corner on the million-dollar site last night in a two-mile jaunt preliminary to settling down for the campaign.

At virtually the same time the ticket sale for what Tex Rickard says is the fight spectacle of the ages was started, with more than 7,000 of them going into the hands of receivers during the first few hours.

The police began a task of their own as the fight machinery began to grind, declaring their intentions of keeping the title bout entirely free from "hoodlum" disorders by preventing any known gangsters from obtaining tickets or entering the Soldier Field Stadium, scene of the conflict.

As Dempsey launched his program today he faced several rounds of shadow boxing, rope skipping and bag punching, with his mentor, Leo P. Flynn, delaying the more intensive festivities until next week.

EARLY WORK PRIVATE.

Jack said he put in 10 strenuous days of training before he left California, and would take it easy here for the first week. He was in an especially cheerful humor today because of his delight over the comfortable quarters. He weighs about 203 pounds now, Trainer Gus Wilson said, and expects to go into the ring against Tunney a month hence weighing around 195.

Flynn and Dempsey discussed the question of public workouts at great length and finally decided that the training for this week, at least, would be private. Next week a couple of days may be set aside for visitors and so on each week until the battle in Soldier Field.

As the ticket sale was opened diagrams of the seating section were missing from the Palmer House headquarters and purchasers had only their ticket price to follow in guessing their distance from the ring.

The number of the row refers only to the seat section, the box office told numerous buyers, and Row 26 is not necessarily 26 rows from the ringside.

BEST SEATS WITHHELD.

All price seats were available at the nine windows, from $5 to $40, and no restrictions were placed on the number one might purchase. Several blocks of 20 were handed out, and these buyers were asked to show business cards, but nothing more.

No secret was made of the fact that the choicest $40 seats were not on sale, awaiting the distribution committee to be selected by George F. Getz, the legal promoter for Tex Rickard.

The tickets were printed in seven different colors, one for each price class, the $40 ticket having an "olive drab" color scheme.

Dempsey's punch partners were due from New York today and the lockers and trucks in the jockeys' quarters at Lincoln Fields had been cleared to make room for a half-dozen of the sparboys.

NOTES of the BOXERS

PITTSBURGH had two winners and one loser in boxing bouts staged last night. Tommy Crowley won 9 of the 10 rounds of a main bout with Maxie Holub of Akron at Canton, according to reports from the scene, and Pete Zivic defeated Tony Carney of New Bedford in a 10-rounder at Holyoke, Mass., while Phil Goldstein lost to Eddie Elkins of New York in the semi-final of this show. Sig Keppen of Beaver Falls was disqualified along with Johnny Reisler of New York in their bout at Troy, N. Y., the referee halting the fight in the seventh round and declaring it "no contest." Reports have it that Keppen tried to make a fight of the engagement, but Reisler slowed down the action with his holding tactics.

Many interesting battles are scheduled for tonight around the country. Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, whose last stop was London where he knocked out Tommy Milligan, meets Wilson Yarbo, Cleveland Negro, in a 10-round non-title match in Cleveland; Frankie Genaro, former flyweight champion, boxes Frankie Garcia at Utica; Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, makes his bow as a middleweight against Allentown Joe Gans at Wilkes-Barre; Fidel LaBarba, the flyweight champion, bids farewell to the ring for the present to enter Leland Stanford University, in a bout at Los Angeles with Johnny Vacca of Boston, already twice victor over him; Big Boy Peterson, New Orleans heavyweight, boxes Otto Von Porat of Norway at Minneapolis; Russ Whalen meets Farmer Joe Cooper at Indianapolis, and Andy Divodi boxes Charley Rosen and Archie Bell engage Dominick Petrone in 10-rounders at the Queensboro A. C. in New York.

Marco Polo, McKees Rocks light-heavyweight, who was one of Jack Sharkey's sparring partners in the latter's preparation for his bout with Jack Dempsey, will be on the Madison Square Garden card Thursday night, along with Johnny Urban, another Pittsburgher who was a sparring mate for Sharkey. Polo will meet Vinko Jakasa in a four-round preliminary and Urban is on with Benny Touchstone in a 10-rounder. Jack Renault and Arthur DeKuh box the windup and Monte Munn meets Chief Metoquah in the semi-final.

Bobby Young, former Duquesne featherweight, is coming all the way from Detroit to box the second preliminary to Jules Beck's Cuddy DeMarco-Johnny Mellow main bout at the Duquesne Steel Park next Monday night. Young has been campaigning very successfully around Detroit for almost a year and plans to surprise his friends in this section with his stuff against Ralph Marino, the Bloomfield Italian. Beck reports a keen interest in his show, the second of the outdoor season in this section, and looks for a gate of close to $2,000.

the fine was imposed there is a better chance for harmony now than before.

"All the Pirates have to do," said Mr. Dreyfuss, "is to take advantage of the games with the weaker clubs of the league. While they are doing this the Cubs, Giants and Cardinals have many games to play with one another and thus may undo themselves. It's too early to count the Pirates out now. But for injuries to many good men, the Pirates today would have a commanding lead and all this talk of dissension would sound sillier than it does now."

JOE M'CARTHY, Cub manager, believes in leaving the ball game at the ball park. An erring player finds McCarthy lecturing him on the field of play—and after that McCarthy forgets about the error. "Tell them about it while it's fresh on your mind and on their minds and then let them alone," says the successful Cub pilot. "After the game they should be free to relax. All I want them to do is to hustle every second they are on the ball field."

McCarthy seldom mingles with his men after hours. He is a strict disciplinarian, the boys say, but he does no watching. He judges the men's conduct off the field by how they act on the field.

Control Essential In Mashie Play

By Tommy Armour

(United States and Canadian Open Champion.)

WHEN I was discussing the mashie in my last article I put down a few pointers designed to be helpful to those who are having trouble with this most useful of all clubs to the average player. Being one of the most useful it is likewise one of the most difficult to master and the reason is that it has to be controlled properly to be effective.

You seldom can mis-hit the ball with a mashie and get anything out of the hit. It's different with the wooden clubs and with the long irons, for often, especially with the lively ball, fairly good results are obtained even when the ball has not been hit properly. Everyone has half-topped a drive and got good distance out of it. Sometimes good distance is obtained even when the ground is hit back of the ball. But not with a mashie.

The first point I made was to play the ball in close to the body. By that I meant to stand close to the ball. That tends to keep the right elbow in at the right side, failure to do which is responsible for half of the woes that come to the average player. Let the right elbow wander away and you are lost. Your control is gone.

The second point I made was to stand as upright as possible. The more upright you are the more vertical will be your swing and the more vertical your swing the less margin will there be for error-making. It's the same principle as the driving machine. On a driving machine the club goes through the same vertical plane on the upstroke and downstroke, and hence it always comes on the ball in the same way and there is absolutely no chance to slice or hook. The ball always goes out in the direction that it is hit.

BALL GOES AS HIT.

So it will if you take the club through a vertical plane, although not always as straight as with the machine, for there isn't the same control over the body that there is over a mechanical device. Good players, of course, like Jones, can take the club back more flatly, but they adjust to the upright at the top of the backswing and bring the club down through a vertical plane.

I also use the word "hit" in the last two points I made, one dealing with hitting through with the hands and hitting nice and easy. The mashie shot—all iron shots in fact—are "hits." In order to hit the ball right you must hit down on it. The blow must be a descending one. Don't be afraid to hit down on it. It may come hard at first, but it is the only way to play the shot.

There are one or two other helpful hints that occur to me. One is to let the club-head hug the ground for a short way back of the ball on the upstroke. Another caution is against trying to pick the ball up. The loft on the club-head will do that for you. That's its business.

A third caution is against the tendency to pick the club up with the right hand. That's the job that must be done by the left hand.

BEAVER VALLEY TRACTION TEAM IN POLICE MEET

Beaver Valley Traction, whose athletic team made a surprisingly good showing in the recent Philadelphia Company games at Schenley Oval, has entered a large team in the ninth annual police meet to be held Saturday at the University of Pittsburgh stadium. The entry list closed on Saturday with a small army of athletes entered.

serious phase of the race at the present time, and they are going to the five games here without the services of Earl Smith, who seemed to be coming out of his batting slump to some extent.

Smith was the member of the club that did not make the jaunt to New Haven. Earl was permitted to remain in New York for the remainder of the week, the Pittsburgh management fearing he would be arrested over the Bancroft trouble in case he appeared here at this time. Bancroft is said to have entered suit for $15,000 against Smith. The papers could be served on the Pirate catcher if he entered Massachusetts.

GOOCH TO BE BUSY.

So it appears as if Johnny Gooch will be a busy boy in the remaining days of the week. Gooch would be sure of a respite in the event of a southpaw opposing the Pirates, but the Braves are shy of effective left-handers. Spencer, by the way, has been nursing a bad leg, but he can go under the bat if necessary.

Lee Meadows and Ray Kremer are ready for the slab assignment in tomorrow's games, although Kremer's bad knee is giving him trouble again. Kremer, however, will work in the series if he is able. In case he should be out of whack, John Miljus would get a chance to start. In view of Miljus' clever relief performances he may be selected for one of the games of the long series.

Manager Donie Bush spent part of yesterday in watching Dick Bartell, 20-year-old Pirate farmhand, who is playing short for the Bridgeport club of the Eastern League.

Eddie Montague, former Pirate youngster, is a member of the New Haven club, as is Pitcher Roy Mahaffey, who belongs to the Pirates. Joe Cronin was greeted by many New Haven friends. Joe starred here for a part of the 1926 season.

happens, they are almost certain to qualify.

That, this morning, was more than one could say about Von Elm, the champion; Bob Gardner, who twice held the title in other and perhaps better years; Knepper, Bill Fownes, Ben Stein, Frank Dolp and even Gunn with his 77. Only 32 men can proceed with the match play rounds after today's final show-down, and since almost 60 men broke 80 yesterday, the answer is obvious. A man in the high seventies is not skating on thin ice; he is dancing on the spray of the Niagara rapids.

Such a man was Von Elm with a 79. He must do at least 76 today to feel certain of escaping the ignominy of being the second national champion in history who failed to qualify for a tournament in defense of his title. Bob Gardner held this doubtful distinction alone, up to and including the moment, and it was worthy of mention that Garnder was starting out this morning behind an 89.

FOWNES HAS 79.

So were Dolp and Stein, not to forget Fred Wright. The good ones grouped with Von Elm at 79 were Knepper and Fownes. Ross Somerville had a 78 and Dr. O. F. Willing and Gunn were in there fighting at 77 with the nucleus of a standing army.

To be certain of remaining with the situation until further notice, these entries simply will have to better their hands today. Of course, that happens to be one of the reasons they are good; they can and do bull's-eye the situation when necessary.

YANKS LOSE SHOCKER

CLEVELAND, Aug. 23.—(INS.)—Urban Shocker probably will be lost to the New York Yankees for several weeks, it was learned today. A line drive off Joe Sewell's bat broke a finger on the veteran spitball pitcher's left hand.

STOCKS-BONDS-GRAIN-PROVISIONS-LIVESTOCK

Specialties Lead Local Market

The heavy demand for Lone Star Gas noted on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange the past several sessions appeared to have dwindled down to a nominal trading situation today. In the early dealings the bids for Lone Star were practically unchanged from yesterday's prices, but the session was well along toward midmorning before any transactions were actually recorded.

Such interest as there was in the market centered in a few scattered specialties. Shares of the Penn-Federal Corporation, the only local amusement company stock, came into the trading early in the day with a few odd lots of the common and preferred issues changing hands at figures comparing evenly with last previous prices. The Penn-Federal Corporation owns the new theater under construction at Penn avenue and Sixth street and in turn is controlled, through stock ownership, by the Loew interests. Activity in the shares today was due to reports that the outlook for the major amusement companies and the principal theaters is much better than had been supposed a few weeks ago. A reflection of this situation is the current strength in Paramount-Famous-Lasky which had a three-point advance on the "big board" Monday and which is now selling about 10 points above its level of two weeks or so ago.

Lone Star Gas came into the market at 49 and after a few sales at that level dropped back to 45⅝, thereby eliminating all the improvement of the previous day's upturn. Standard Sanitary was in fair demand and sold up to 91 after opening with a fractional overnight gain at 90⅝. National Fireproofing common appeared on the board for the first time in a week, selling at 8⅜ as against the last previous sale at 9. United States Glass, which fell back a full point in Monday's market, sagged off a fraction to 11⅝ on a few transactions.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Pressed Steel Goes Higher.

The upward movement in Pressed Steel Car continued today, but definite information as to the cause of the strength was lacking. The street assumes that this company will eventually find its way into a merger with General American Tank Car, basing the guess on reported statements of men in the industry that there are too many car building concerns in the field at present. George Whelan, cigar store magnate, and his friends are said to control Pressed Steel Car and their purpose in acquiring the stock a year or more ago was thought to be in anticipation of a tie-up with some other company, General Tank, as the street hears now. Pittsburgh traders as a rule regard Pressed Steel Car as "poison," mainly because of its many false moves and the fact that it has not paid any dividends since the abnormal boom that followed the armistice.

Coppers Make Further Gains.

Stocks of the principal copper companies forged ahead steadily today, although there was nothing savoring of a boom in this division. Consistent progress of the copper stocks has been one of the features of the current rally and there is a confident feeling that the price of the red metal will be at the 14-cent level before long. This price for copper permits most of the companies to earn a satisfactory return on capital and means very good profits for certain producers who are in a favorable position as regards cost of production. American Smelters, Kennecott, Anaconda and Cerro de Pasco were the leaders of the movement today. Around 171 Smelters ran into some selling, probably induced by reports that B. M. Baruch has not been on the buying side since the stock crossed 134, but the other coppers held firm at their higher levels.

Pan Americans Slump.

Weakness of the Pan American Petroleum and Transport issues cast a cloud over the entire oil division, although it did not bring out any noticeable selling in the stocks of the big domestic concerns. Mexican Seaboard broke sharply on its poor earnings report and there was probably some sentimental pressure on the latter as a result of the Pan American slump. The companies, however, are not related. Traders accept the Pan American decline as an indication of a cut in the dividend, but there has been no official intimation of such action. Present rate is $4 a year. Talk was heard today of a reduction to $3 annually. Another factor bearing on the decline is the report that Pan American will be called upon soon to pay its share of the $11,000,000 award obtained by the government in its suit arising out of the Pearl Harbor developments. The board meets for dividend action about the middle of next month. As to earnings outlook, the decrease of 1,000,000 barrels in the company's Mexican output the first half of this year, compared with the first half of 1926, the belief that there will be further shrinkage over the remainder of the year, adds considerable uncertainty to the situation.

Big Drop in Oil Output.

Daily average production of crude oil in the United States for the week ended August 20 totaled 2,519,975 barrels, a decrease of 5,310 barrels, according to the Oil and Gas Journal. Light oil output decreased 33,314 barrels daily.

Mexican Seaboard Loss Larger.

Mexican Seaboard Oil Company reports for the June quarter consolidated net loss of $160,021, as compared with loss of $119,146 in the June, 1926, quarter. For six months ended June 30 there was a net loss of $1,277,955, against loss of $232,469 in the same period in 1926.

Expect Poor Katy Showing.

Preliminary estimates of the July earnings of Missouri-Kansas-Texas lines indicate a decline of something over 15 per cent in gross revenues, caused largely by the disappointing wheat harvest in K-T territory. A year ago the road reported a record gross of $5,352,257 and surplus after charges of $899,161.

Montana's Mineral Wealth.

Production of gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc in Montana in 1926 was slightly less in value than 1925, the Commerce Department reported today. Metal produced last year totaled $59,416,413, compared with $61,944,994 in 1925.

Seaboard to Sell Stock.

Permission to issue and sell 18,500 shares of common capital stock, par value $50 per share, was asked of the Interstate Commerce Commission in an application filed by the Atlantic Coast Line. The issue will be offered at par to stockholders of record October 31 at the rate of one share of new stock for three shares now held.

Continental Can.

Although gross business of Continental Can in the first six months of the current year declined, earnings for the period were $100,000 in excess of the corresponding period of 1926, due to increased use of labor-saving machinery and increased efficiency. It seems likely Continental will show larger profits in 1927 than in 1926, when net for 598,569 common shares was $4.72 a share. Much of the business this year has been done on cash basis and overdue accounts have been reduced to a minimum.

Doheny in West Texas.

Organization of a new oil company is planned by E. L. Doheny of Los Angeles and his associates for the development of leases in West Texas, to be known as the Pan-American Western Petroleum Company of Texas, it is reported in private dispatches. RAILS FIRM AS OILS SHOW WEAKNESS

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Mixed price movements came into the stock market for a while today, following an early resumption of the upward trend in which about 30 stocks, including some of the dividend-paying railroads, reached their best prices of the year. For a time various stocks in different groups advanced and declined simultaneously, until the weight of heavy offerings in the oil section ultimately bore down on the balance of the list.

Selling of the oils was attributed to fears that the 10-cent cut in Pennsylvania crude would spread to other fields, and to liquidation of Pan-American on misgiving over the retention of the current 6 per cent dividend rate. Pan American "B" went down 4⅝ points, and losses of 2 to 2½ were sustained by Houston Oil, Atlantic Refining and General Asphalt.

Active realizing in General Motors, a 4-point drop in Pierce-Arrow preferred and losses of 3 points in Woolworth and Remington Rand also served to disconcert the bullish element for a time, but the readiness with which investment shares were taken on the reaction, especially Union Pacific in the face of an $800,000 falling off in July net operating income, caused the list to harden again in the early afternoon, when a number of specialties moved up to new peak prices.

Private Washington dispatches quoted Secretary Hoover as saying that indications are very fair for good business throughout the country during the rest of 1927, and that, taken by and large, conditions so far this year have not varied much from 1926.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened easy today at a decline of 5 to 15 points under a renewal of realizing or liquidation by recent buyers and local or southern selling, influenced by relatively easy Liverpool cables.

December contracts sold off to 20.85c and March to 21.05c in early trading, net declines of 20 to 25 points on active months and reactions of 30 to 40 points from the high prices yesterday morning. There was some covering or re-buying at these figures, but the market was within 2 or 3 points of the lowest at the end of the first hour.

There was still some uncertainty as to the tropical storm reported yesterday, but the disturbance seemed too far away from the belt to have any particular effect on the market.

The report of the census bureau showing 457,031 bales of cotton ginned prior to August 16, compared with 181,212 for the same date last year and 559,201 two years ago, was evidently below the expectations of recent sellers. Its publication was followed by active covering or rebuying which sent prices to new high ground for the season, December selling up to 21.35c, or fully 50 points above the low level of the morning, and 29 points above yesterday's quotation. The advance attracted considerable realizing by old longs and the market at midday showed reactions of 15 or 20 points from the best.

Expense Money in a Convenient Form for Traveling

An important part of your plan for travel abroad is a consideration of the way you will carry expense money. Naturally you will not want to carry several hundred dollars in cash. It would be unsafe and besides there are places where United States currency would not be acceptable.

Mellon Travelers' Cheques are perhaps the safest and most practical means of carrying expense money. Because of the international standing of the Mellon National Bank, Mellon Travelers' Cheques are good the world over. Being in small denominations, they are readily acceptable in payment for purchases or for conversion into the currency of the land. They are bound together in a leather case as easily carried as a wallet. The convenience of Mellon Travelers' Cheques costs you nothing, as they are sold to you at face value, and are cashed at face value.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The bond market continued steady today, the few price changes being limited to fractions. Trading was again in relatively small volume, and well scattered through all divisions of the list. Money conditions remained easy, tending to hold prices close to their recent high levels.

Convertible bonds again displayed the principal activity and firmness, although the recently strong "D" 4s of the Erie Railroad were somewhat reactionary. Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s and International Telephone 5½s registered large fractional gains.

High grade rail mortgages received only nominal attention and held close to yesterday's closing figures. Pressed Steel Car 5s gained nearly a point, coincident with revivals of merger talk involving the company, and Illinois Steel 4½s also moved up briskly.

Several foreign issues sagged, including Polish 8s, Serbian 8s, and some of the French securities. Dresden 7s again displayed a firm tendency.

Little business was transacted in the U. S. government group, and prices were mixed in tone.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—There was no change in the trading conditions on the curb exchange during the day, many stocks in which there is impressive banking interests and accumulation for controlling groups moving up to new high records without anything in the way of special developments to be referred to as definite moving forces. The market in general reflected the continued ease in money and strength of those concerned in large stock holdings which had a direct result in causing only nominal offerings in many stocks making them sensitive to any new demand. A long list of stocks of which the public has no knowledge were features because of sudden bullish demonstrations, but the gains in such stocks and in other strong features were partly offset by weakness in other issues.

Public utilities found most favor in all the circles that are now concerned in stock market operations, several of them making high records. Among these were Electric Power second preferred, which rose over a point to 101, and Empire Gas, which rose over 2 points to 103½. American Gas and Electric rallied after a reaction late yesterday and there was brisk trading in United Gas Improvement at a higher level.

Movements in the oil stocks were of a different character. Indiana shares were heavy, moving in unison with Pan-American stocks on the stock exchange which declined in anticipation of dividend reduction tomorrow. Wesson Oil and Snow Drift continued its upward movement, making a further gain of a point to 64½, another new high record.

Johns-Manville was again the strong feature of the industrial group, dealings in it being larger than in any other stock on the exchange, on an advance of nearly 4 points to 103½. Ford Motor of Canada touched 550. St. Paul bonds were heavily traded in, but moved within a narrow range.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Following is the official list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (000 omitted in sales column in bond list):

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Wall Street hears that the recently formed Trade Marks Products Company, controlled by George F. Whalen and his associates, will take over Mr. Whalen's interest in Pressed Steel Car Company and will make an offer of exchange for the minority interest outstanding. Pressed Steel shares advanced on the Stock Exchange yesterday on the rumors. Plans are under way to retire the preferred stock of Pressed Steel Car.

Westinghouse Gets Order.

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing has an order from the Great Northern Railroad for six locomotives, involving about $1,500,000, part of a $15,000,000 expansion program by the road.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—The raw sugar market was firmer, with an increased demand. Prices advanced 1-32c with spot Cuban now established on the basis of 4.52c. Sales reported were about 32,000 bags of Philippines due early next month at 4.60c to local refiners and 20,000 bags of Cuban for August shipment to operators and outport refiners at 4.52c.

After opening unchanged to one point lower, raw sugar futures developed increased activity and strength and at midday prices showed net gains of 2 to 3 points. The strength was due to active covering and buying by both trade and Cuban interests, and was promoted by expectations of reduced European beet crop estimates as a result of recent unfavorable weather, and to the increased inquiry in the spot market.

No changes occurred in refined sugar, fine granulated ranging from 5.70 to 5.90c. A good withdrawal demand was reported, and more new business came to light.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP.)—Wet weather and light frost at several points in Canada gave wheat a firm undertone at the start today. Weakness at Winnipeg, however, was quickly reflected in the market here and values declined gradually. Opening ⅛c to ⅜c higher wheat later receded to below yesterday's finish. Commission houses bought September and December corn at the start on unfavorable weather, the market starting ⅛ to ⅜c up, and subsequently suffering a slight setback. Oats sympathized with wheat and corn. Provisions were easy.

Cooler weather overnight in the Canadian northwest with frost reported at several points in Canada was a strengthening factor in the wheat market here today during initial dealings. The extent of damage, however, apparently was not great as reflected in the easiness in the Winnipeg market. The Chicago market soon weakened in sympathy.

Frost and rust damage reports of the past few days were somewhat minimized today. Crop experts traveling in the territory previously said to have suffered severe loss, telegraphed today that the outlook was brighter. One said that wheat is a very good stand between Saskatoon and Prince Albert, Sask. There is no rust apparent from a short distance north to Saskatoon and no bad frost until around Prince Albert. The damage is much less than believed several days ago. Wheat is reported farther advanced west of Swift Current. The harvest in many places is well under way, with prospects of a good crop.

Wheat rallied from the low point around noon, when prices showed a net loss of ⅛ to ⅜c, corn was unchanged to ⅜c off, oats unchanged to ⅛c higher and provisions unsettled.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Most lines of vegetables and fruits were in moderate demand at the local wholesale produce district today. The vegetable market was dull, although price changes were few. New West Virginia and New Jersey Irish potatoes lost 50 cents per 150-pound sack.

Fruits underwent a shakeup as to price. California lemons and oranges sold considerably higher. Honeydews gained 25 cents per crate, while crated California cantaloupes fell off a like amount. The price range on apples in bushel lots was shortened. Grapes sold lower.

Although in liberal supply, poultry was only fairly active. The market continued easy at unchanged quotations.

Little change was noted among dairy products, the butter, cheese and egg markets holding firm.

Carlot supplies were heavy, a total of 232 cars being on track. Arrivals included 4 cars of apples, 17 cantaloupes, 1 celery, 27 grapes, 1 lemons, 1 lettuce, 3 onions, 4 oranges, 29 peaches, 21 pears, 1 peppers, 1 plums, 46 potatoes, 3 sweet potatoes, 4 tomatoes, 3 watermelons, 1 berries and 1 peas.

Hay was in light receipt, six cars having arrived in the yards. The hay and grain markets continued steady without change in quotations.

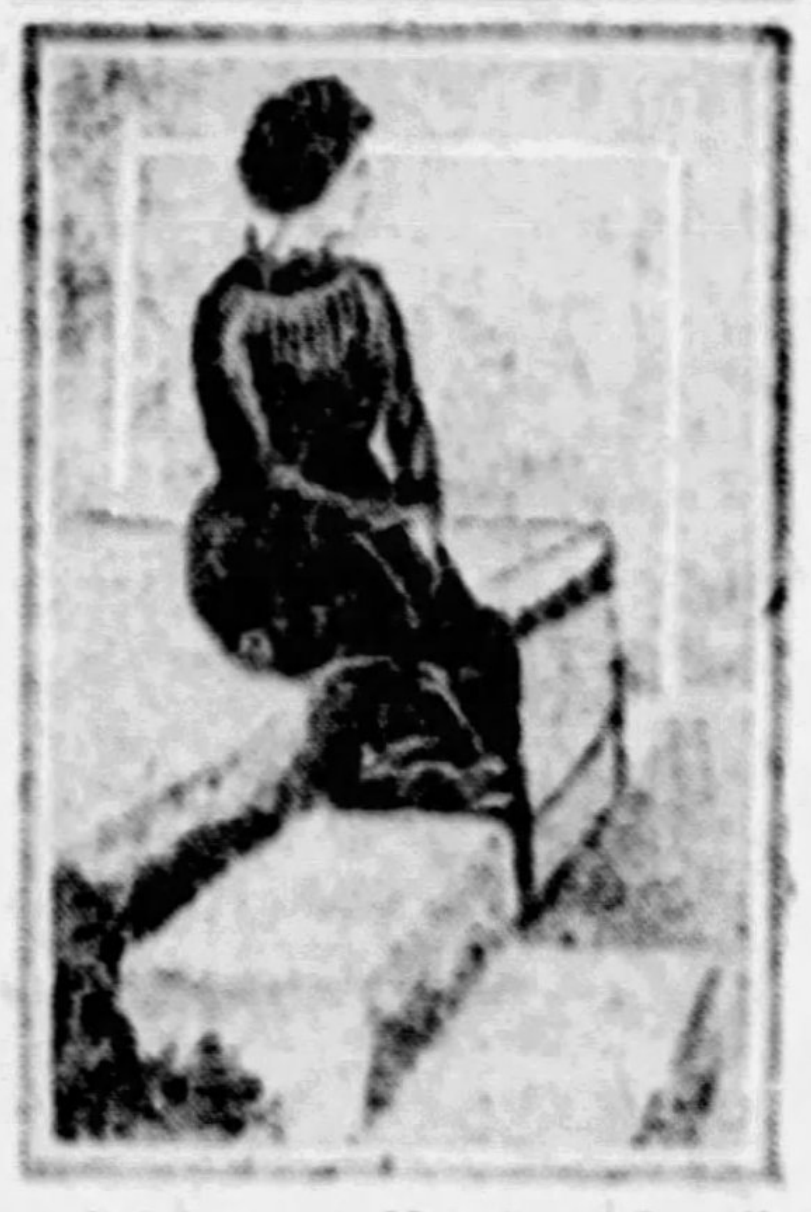
Up, this being the third daye my dame hath gone about in silence, and will neither speak to me nor make answer to anything I saye, and from the proud look on her face I do reckon that she take great pleasure in this shally business, thinking, no doubt, that it will cause me pain, albeit when I lift up the rug to flick cigaret ashes neath it, she doth rage within, checks aflame, but holde tight her lips, while I deport myself with calm, and this be as greate sport as I have enjoyed in a fortnight.

BOOK REVIEW

More about "Maurine"—The Sweetest Story Ever Told



Argument — Maurine Lapelle innocently entertains her orphan coz, handsome Roy Montaine, but Vivian Dangerfield thinks Roy is Maurine's sweetie and gives her a chilly look. He then steps gingerly to the side of Helen Trevor.

"Stay!"
Said Maurine, "one moment, Vivian
If you please," and suddenly
Bereft of all her ease,
And scarcely knowing what to do or say,
Confused as any school girl, she arose
And some way made Roy to Vivian known.
They bowed, shook hands; then Vivian turned away
And sought out Helen, leaving us alone.
"One of Miss Trevor's or of Maurine's beaux?
Which may he be, who cometh like a prince
With haughty bearing, and an eagle eye?"
Roy queried, laughing, and I made reply, "Since
You saw him pass me for Miss Trevor's side,
I leave it to your judgment to decide."

And thus we will leave our saccharine heroine until tomorrow.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 2. While the Jack of Hearts is led by Declarer from Dummy, it was with no intention of finessing, but on the possibility that East might cover. Should the finesse be attempted and fail, West would inevitably shift to Diamonds because of his partner's discouraging Spade played to the first trick, and as a result two Diamond tricks would ultimately be lost and game could not be made. Whereas, by conceding a Heart trick and establishing Clubs while yet in command of all three side suits, game is certain.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self addressed stamped envelope.

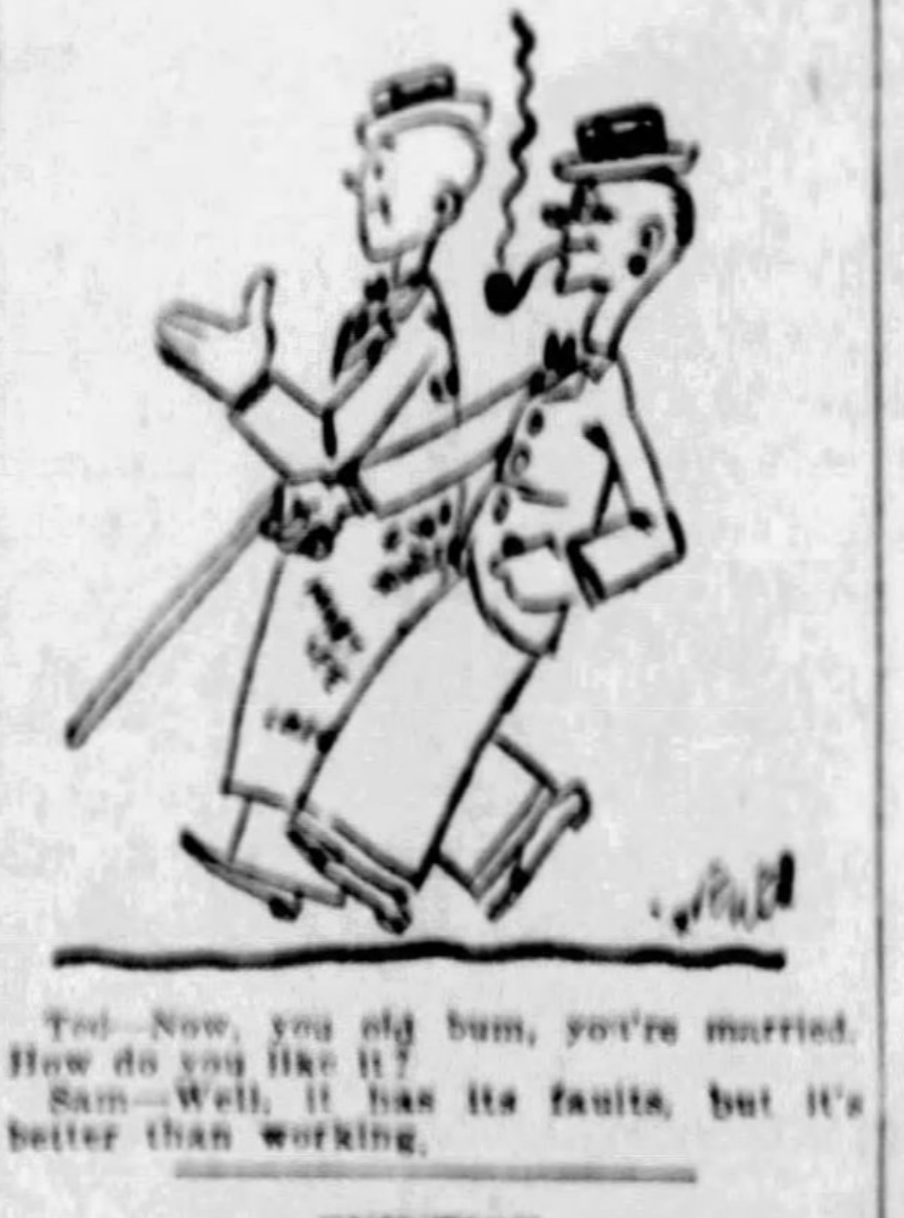
A LESSER EVIL.

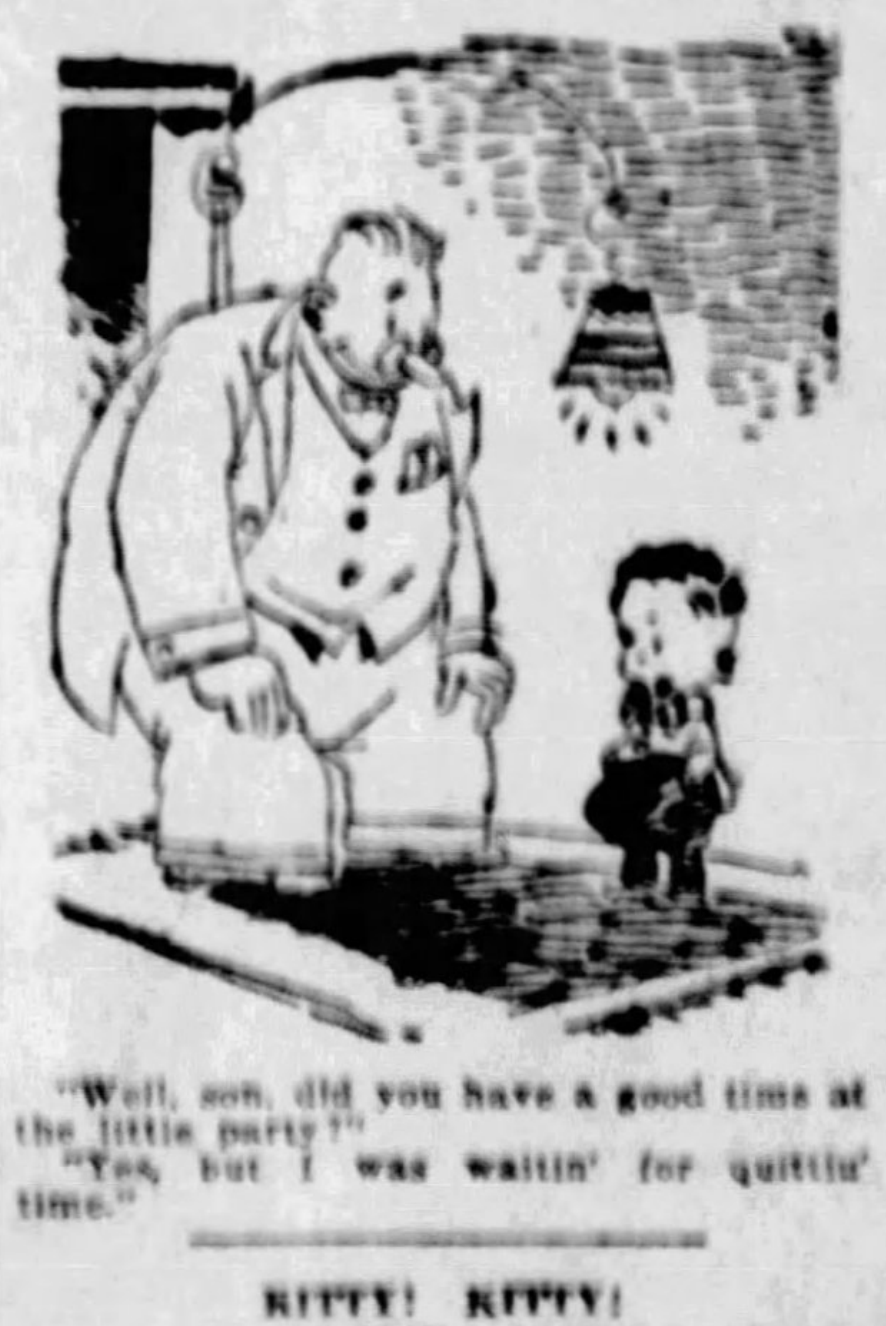


Ted—Now, you old bum, you're married. How do you like it?
Sam—Well, it has its faults, but it's better than working.

QUESTION.

Wife—Did you miss me while I was away?
Hubby—Yes, I'd often feel homesick. But I'd look at your photograph and I wouldn't feel homesick any more.

TOTS NOTICE THOSE THINGS, TOO.



"Well, son, did you have a good time at the little party?"
"Yes, but I was waitin' for quittin' time."

KITTY! KITTY!

Betty—Jack said I'm beautiful—charming.
Jane—Now, Betty, you be careful of those fellows who deceive you.

Martyrs Are Not All in the Public Eye

While members of a group of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers were in the act of expressing their sentiment that these men were martyrs, in a neighboring community yesterday, another man fell a martyr to their manner of giving outlet to their feelings and passions.

He was not a man in the public eye. No agitation to extend the period of his life had been made. His right to live was secure, in the face of right and reason and moral obligation. Yet he died a martyr—a martyr to duty.

Shot down as he strove to maintain order and peace in the performance of his work as a state officer, John J. Downey perished. He had been convicted of no crime, yet he died. No time was given to him to prepare for death. He was cut down quickly and expeditiously—more swiftly than the law ever acts—and yet he had the law on his side.

Not all martyrs are those in the public eye.

Unit Operation of Oil Pools A National Need

The Federal government is the agency to step in and stop the terrible waste of oil due to our present methods of production.

We are producing two and a half million barrels a day, which, the Federal Oil Conservation Board tells us, is one million barrels daily more than the country needs.

If this is not the concern of the national government, what is its concern? Its first duty under the Constitution is to provide for the common defense. The most important requisite for the national defense is an ample supply of oil. Without it we cannot run trucks, tanks, airplanes or ships. How can it be said that the government is providing for the common defense when it permits the unexampled squandering of this limited irreplaceable munition of war?

There is no reason to believe that we have in the ground more oil than many other parts of the world. We are simply finding it and exhausting it faster. In stripping ourselves of our future defense, last year we exported five hundred and forty million dollars' worth of petroleum and petroleum products.

The wasteful and unnecessary amount of oil we are extracting is one reason for the government interfering. The other reason is the manner of extracting the oil.

We allow drilling by every landowner located over an oil pool. In fact, each landowner is obliged to drill or see the oil all drained up through his neighbors' wells.

When oil is discovered under town lots, as at Signal Hill, Long Beach, California, there is a huge waste of money in drilling $100,000 wells whose derricks almost touch.

Worse than that, gas blowing off from these multiple wells reduces the gas pressure that would otherwise cheaply lift the oil. Deprived of this gas pressure, much of the oil in the ground is lost forever. When the gas blows off, the oil becomes thick like molasses and no longer flows easily to the well.

Oil geologists agree that, on the average, for every barrel of oil we recover, we leave two in the ground that might be recovered by scientific operation. That is, today we are extracting 2,500,000 barrels daily and are losing 5,000,000 barrels a day by our senseless method of recovery.

Oil men know the solution. It is to compel unit operation of each pool. That is, exploit it by a single agency that will put down no more wells than needed, and will stop sinking wells when overproduction threatens. The resulting oil would be divided among the surface landowners and each be richer than before.

It is folly to say that the Federal government has no power to act in a matter which so vitally concerns the common defense. It is folly to talk of it as confiscation when what is proposed is a means of increasing the value of property.

The next Congress should establish a Federal oil commission like the Interstate Commerce Commission for the railroads, and the law should prescribe the enforcement of unit operation as the first duty of the commission.

The Ideals We Profess and What We Are Doing About It

The president of Columbia University, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, once a candidate for the presidential nomination, is a strange combination of rigid conservative and profound pessimist. Hating what he thinks of as radical ideas as a dispenser of holy water hates the devil, he nevertheless is utterly dissatisfied with things as they are, at least in his own country. His most recent complaint is that this country "talks and talks, discusses and discusses, but does nothing." He asks, "Must America always profess the highest ideals and do nothing about them?"

Well, we'll bite. Must it? Or is there something in the traditions of our country that forces us to do more than anybody else, even against our obvious material interests, in our fixed though possibly unreasonable demand for idealism?

Take the naval conference at Geneva. In common with all other countries we share the ideal of lessening the general possibility of war. Nothing in reason or history leads to the belief that war can be prevented by agreements, but we all cling to the ideal of so preventing it. Therefore we call conference after conference on limiting armaments; we make proposal after proposal to cut down our own potential naval strength till it shall be no greater than what other less powerful countries can easily attain to; we whittle away our military strength until we become practically dependent on Mr. Bryan's famous million springers-to-arms; and when our most moderate proposals are kicked into the discard we promptly plan another conference, this time in Washington, where "American idealism" can exert fiercer pressure to give away more and more.

And this in the face of the fact, if we chose, we could so strengthen ourselves that any country in Europe would go bankrupt in ten years trying to keep up; and we could do it without even increasing our taxes.

If that is "professing the highest ideals and doing nothing about them," in what country on the face of the earth are they doing something about them?

We enter the European war, and, at a cost which staggers calculators, we not only provide and transport an army of millions, but lend France hundreds of millions more. We never ask it back. After the war is over we hand her still more hundreds of millions, and when she declines to pay it because the cost of keeping up her own military strength makes it inconvenient we enter into an agreement which allows her to pay it on her own terms; and when France not only repudiates that agreement but shrieks insults at us for asking payment at all we let the little matter slide. As Dr. Butler says, we "do nothing." What would he have us do in defense of our ideals of ordinary international honesty—fight France?

This talk of failure to live up to our ideals gives us a sharp pain. Our material interests demand that we take advantage of our own strength. Our idealism says, "Let us do nothing of the sort." And we do nothing of the sort. Historians may decide that we were wrong in sticking to our idealism; but only a philosopher suffering from a touch of the sun could venture to assert that we do n

Sunspots
By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

WHEN the general public comes to comprehend fully the earthly significance of sunspots, or perhaps it might better be said, when astronomers and meterologists themselves come to a complete understanding of the subject and an agreement upon it, then the "sunspot period" will be a universally recognized division of time, as familiar as the return of the seasons, though more irregular.

This year has furnished so many striking and unpleasant instances of the upsetting effects of sunspots, or of the force that produces sunspots upon the earth's atmospheric and magnetic conditions, and so upon its weather, that already many people are anxiously inquiring: "How long is this thing going to last?" and "Isn't there anything that science can do to stop it?"

Unfortunately the last question must be answered with a hopeless "No, nothing can be done," to which some optimist might soothingly add: "At least not at present; we must wait a little."

But something more encouraging may be said in answer to the first question. It is probable that the disturbance will reach its height during the present year, so that we may look for a relaxation in 1928. When it is said that about the only direct effect of sunspots upon the weather that can be called scientifically determined, is a small lowering of the mean temperature at the earth's surface during the time that the spots are most numerous, the statement does not look very formidable. But there are other things that change co-incidently with the temperature, and some of these, though evident enough to human senses and to the sensibility of plants and other organisms, have no defined places in the list of meteorological elements. The simple fact that the earth's magnetic condition is very responsive to the sunspot period, is enough to indicate how great, though as yet not well defined, may be the influence upon human beings and human interests of the gigantic fluctuations that occur in the condition of the sun.

The cause of these is still only theoretically determined, but it appears certain that it lies inside the sun itself, and a very good general description of its mode of action is given by likening it to the periodical eruptions of a geyser. Sometimes the pent-up energy in the depths of the geyser is exceptionally long in attaining sufficient strength to burst forth in an eruption, and such delayed explosions—as is the case also with volcanoes—are of unusual violence. So, upon the sun the period of quiescence is sometimes very much lengthened, and the subsequent outbreak may be proportionally powerful.

STARS AND STRIPES—

A statistical editor estimates that of the 26,000,000 postal cards printed daily 80 per cent are used to send this message: "Having a fine time; wish you were here!"

Overhearing an Italian woman refer to her party as foreigners, an English woman visitor to Florence exclaimed indignantly: "You are quite wrong. We are English. It is you that are foreigners."

Value of a Smile

WHAT a little thing, sometimes, can change a day of joy into one of despondency!

On the top of the mountain, freedom and happiness, while over the other side lurks danger and despair.

Out of your home whistling and back in it at night quivering with contacts distasteful and humiliating.

It is a very tiny, fine line, that division between joy and sorrow.

What are you making it, for those whom you meet?

Are you unnecessarily blasting hopes with your pessimism?

Are you cross and crabbed with youth and its enthusiasms?

Are you dictatorial at times when it paralyzes action and makes puppets of those around you, who might serve you better if you kept still?

Just what is your idea of bringing happiness to those who are near you, either in passing or at home?

It is not rich gifts, but a smile or a pleasant word, that makes the world a good place.

You have to work day in and day out with folk, to know them.

You like consideration. Give it.

The Rhyming Optimist
By ALINE MICHAELIS

Sea Wind

SWEET is the song that the sea-wind sings, coming at last to shore down by the rocks where the sea-weed clings and the breakers sweep and roar. Singing of wonders that wait the gaze far from the shore's embrace, wastes of waters and opal haze and a sense as of limitless space. Loud is the song that the sea-wind sings, telling old tales again; romance and magic the sea-wind brings with a lure that will never wane. Melody lies on the sea-wind's lips, music that will not die, wrought into stories of sunken ships and the marvels of sea and sky. Dear are the dreams that the sea-wind brings here on this rock-strewn strand, with its voice like the sound of a thousand strings that are touched by a master hand.

New York Day by Day
by
O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—These are drab days for those gay creatures of the Fortuitous Forties known as chorus girls. The demand for them has been slimmer than ever before in Rialto history. There were just three whopping choruses in town during the summer.

Only two cabarets had a merry-merry of consequence. And the sagging night club business pyramided the misery. It used to be the chorine could butter over lean summer days with a roof garden engagement. But this, too, was denied them.

Any girl who leaves the fireside to seek an engagement in New York this winter is courting bitter disappointment. The little up-stairs theatrical agencies in Times Square now have more than a dozen applicants for every job.

Scores already have moved from theatrical hotels to hall rooms—and others have vanished. A personnel manager of a big department store reports more than 20 chorus girls working at basement counters. Others have become manicure and telephone girls.

But those who cling to the forlorn hope with that rare optimism of their calling are in desperate plight. It is no exaggeration that many are without necessary food and clothing. Headlines recently have told of a number turning on gas or searing lips with acid.

The chorus girl who is basking nightly in the spot is a target for ready dinner buyers and the Johns who go "buy-buy." But the jobless gal finds herself completely out of the picture. Her halo is made by the lights and tinsel. Without them she is often as commonplace as the mold on a pat of butter.

Most of them are improvidential. They did not put it in the bank and consequently are unprepared for rough weather. The most affluent have had apartments in the West Seventies, but so bleak is the outlook that even hard-hearted landlords have canceled many leases.

Under the canopy of a West Forty-fourth street theater as the audience was departing the other evening three blind men a few feet apart came along tapping the sidewalk noisily with canes. The play happened to be one in which a man suddenly blinded played a tragic role and a shower of coin fell into each cup.

* * *

Speaking of chorus girls, one wonders where they select those airy names. Among the few now playing are: Aini Hendricks, Thaile Hamilton, Bee Basil, Leonita Waters, Heddika Rich, Carlindy Abby, Deever Haines and Seattle Wright. There is an unbeatable collection of first names! And Gladys Glad is quite a famous and beautiful show girl.

Wardrobe mistresses in theaters play a sympathetic part in the lives of the chorus girl. Many were of the chorus in opulent days and they know by bitter experience the value of thrift. The chorus girl in trouble and away from her parents usually turns to the wardrobe woman for advice and consolation.

Many successful girls of the chorus "adopt" mothers. They are kindly gray-haired ladies, often old character actresses, in need of shelter, and in exchange for a place to live they look after the fluttering birdlings and attempt to protect them from worldly dangers.

* * *

The Stage Door Inn is a co-operative enterprise in midtown, providing positions for unemployed chorus girls as waitresses. They are permitted in order of application to work there for a few weeks between engagements.

* * *

A theatrical agency manager, contrary to popular impressions, says most girls who fail in chorus girl jobs and are out of employment for long periods return to their homes. The popular idea is that they take a short cut to the "dogs."

A Needed Invention
By DR. FRANK CRANE

They say the law of supply and demand is operative in inventive circles as well as elsewhere.

In two fields especially invention is needed. Thomas Edison is said to be working almost exclusively on some plan for synthesized rubber.

This is a rubber age, and the extensive use of automobiles has enormously increased the demand. Whoever would invent some way to manufacture a cheap substtute for rubber would not only make a fortune himself, but he would greatly benefit the world. There seems to be no reason why some substance cannot be manufactured that will replace rubber, to a degree.

Chemists have invaded the perfume and flavor field and the dye and coal tar products have given us dyes that are remarkable. It is said by some that flavors and odors can be more successfully manufactured by the chemists than they are by nature. If the chemist will do like work in the field of rubber he will be rewarded.

Another demand is for the control of the weather. Sir Oliver Lodge the other day said that there was nothing in the way of man's controlling the weather. The fog remains the worst enemy to transportation, whether the ocean liner, the railroad train or the air ship.

Fog is the sailor's greatest enemy and it is the air man's greatest enemy.

You cannot do much successful navigation unless you are able to see your way. When not only the path but the stars are blotted out and you are compelled to bowl along at one hundred miles an hour in impenetrable obscurity it is dangerous business. Just how man shall overcome fog conditions it is impossible to say, but it is certainly a challenge to the inventive genius of man.

The meteorological reports are surprisingly accurate. Most people regard the weather man simply as a good guesser. He is not. He bases his predictions upon facts and reasons according to established meteorological laws. Weather predictions have a high average of accuracy.

The conditions on the Atlantic are baffling.

It is probable that Nungesser and Coli came to their doom and were vanquished by the weather.

Tales That Are Told

Find the Edge

THE stout woman struggled to enter a narrow doorway on a train.

"Hurry up there!" yelled the conductor, approaching her with fire in his eyes. "Hurry up! Get in edgeways, ma'am!"

The would-be traveler regarded the official with an angry glare. "And what," she snapped bitterly, "what if I ain't got no edge?"

Never Bored

"HOW are you spending your vacation?"

"In an ideal way. I'm pleased nearly all the time."

"Lucky chap! What is your method?"

"I spend two days in the country, then I'm glad to get back to the city. I spend two days in the city, then I'm glad to get back to the country. It's a great scheme. Try it."

Shorter Hours

CASEY met Kelly attired in his Sunday clothes.

"Are ye wurrkin' today?" queried Casey.

"No," said Kelly. "We declared a shtrike yistiday."

"For more pay?"

"No. For shorter hours."

"Oi don't blame ye! Oi always maintained that 60 minutes wuz too much for an hour—an' Oi hopes ye wins!"

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

THE utter lack of discipline in the early days of telegraphy is almost unbelievable. Edison tells of a day operator who came in one night drunk, kicked over the stove, piled every operator's table on top, tore the switchboard from the wall, smashed the batteries, and left the place well-satisfied with his destructive tactics.

IN contrast to such brutal outbursts was the contact Edison had with two leaders of the day's journalism. By request he was permitted to listen in on the nightly discussions between the celebrated editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, George D. Prentice, and Mr. Tyler of the Associated Press.

IN his "telegraph" days Edison was a frequenter of book auctions and second-hand book stores. His consumption of reading matter along scientific lines was prodigious. At a certain auction he successfully bid $2 for twenty unbound volumes of the North American Review. These he considered a great prize.

EDISON had the books bound and sent to the telegraph office. Relieved at 3 a. m., he shouldered his treasure and ran briskly toward "home." A shot rang out. A bullet whizzed past his head. A policeman, thinking him a thief, had shouted a warning, which Edison, being deaf, had not heard. (Continued Tomorrow.)
